SC Raps Centre Over Delay In Cashless Scheme For Accident Victims, Summons Transport Secy

NEW DELHI: The Supreme Court on Wednesday rapped the Centre over the delay in formulating a cashless medical treatment scheme for motor accident victims and summoned the secretary of the Ministry of Road Transport for an explanation.

A bench of Justices Abhay S Oka and Ujjal Bhuyan took objection that despite its January 8 order, the Centre did not comply

"The time granted has expired on March 15, 2025. This is a serious breach and violation of not only orders of this court but a violation of implementing a very beneficial legislation. We direct the secretary, ministry of road transport and highways to appear on video-conferencing and explain why the directions of this court were not complied with," the bench said.

Only when top government officers are summoned here they take the orders of the court seriously, it added.

Additional solicitor general Vikramjeet Banerjee, appearing for the Centre, said there were "bottle necks".

The bench, however, remarked,"This is your own legislation, people are loosing lives, because there is no facility for cashless treatment. This is for the benefit of common people. We are putting you to notice, we'll take action under contempt. Ask your secretary to come and explain." The official was directed by the top court to appear on April 28 for the explanation.

The bench also directed the secretary of transport department to issue instructions in writing to all district magistrates to upload the claims of hidden hit-and-run cases on the General Insurance Council (GIC) portal.

On January 8, the top court directed the Centre to formulate the scheme for the cashless medical treatment of motor accident victims in the "golden hour" period mandated under the law.

It had referred to Section 162(2) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, and ordered the government to provide by March 14 the scheme which could save numerous lives with prompt medical care to accident victims.

The golden hour, defined under Section

2 (12-A) of the Act, refers to a one-hour window following a traumatic injury under which a timely medical intervention will most likely prevent death.

The court had underscored the importance of providing immediate medical caused by financial concerns or procedural hurdles often cost lives.

It had underlined the statutory obligation on the Centre to frame a scheme under Section 162 for cashless treatment and said the provision sought to uphold and protect the right to life guaranteed by Article 21 of the Constitution.

The law therefore provides the insurance companies carrying on general insurance business in India to provide for the treatment of road accident victims, including during golden hour in accordance with the scheme made under the MV Act, it said.

It was noted despite the provision being in force since April 1, 2022, the government was yet to implement the scheme, prompting the court's intervention.

The Centre had submitted a draft concept note outlining a proposed scheme, which included a maximum treatment cost of Rs

However, these limitations were criticised by counsel representing the petitioner, who argued they fell short of addressing the need for comprehensive care.

The GIC was tasked with administering hit-and-run compensation claims and developing a portal to streamline the process, it said.

The portal would enable the upload of required documents, inform states of deficiencies, and reduce delays in processing

The order had said 921 claims under the hit-and-run compensation scheme remained pending as of July 31, 2024, due to document deficiencies, and asked the GIC to coordinate with claimants and address

The GIC was further instructed to expedite the development of the portal and report compliance by March 14, 2025.

Maharashtra polls were won through 'fraud': Kharge

AHMEDABAD: Alleging that the BJP won the Maharashtra assembly polls through a "fraud" like never before, Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge on Wednesday made a strong pitch for having elections on ballot paper.

Addressing the AICC session here, Kharge also accused the Modi government of "selling off" government assets to benefit crony capitalists and finishing democracy slowly.

"The whole world is moving from EVMs to ballot paper but we are using EVMs. This is all fraud. They ask us to prove it. You have devised such techniques that benefit the ruling party and put the opposition at a disadvantage," Kharge said.

But the youngsters of this country will rise and "say we want ballot paper", he said in his inaugural address at the session being held here on the banks of the Sabarmati river.

"What happened in Maharashtra. We raised the issue

He alleged that the government ran Parliament's Budget session according to their whims and fancies.

"The Speaker took the Leader of Oposition's name but did not let him speak. This is shameful in a democracy. If you do not allow LoP to speak how will you let people to raise their voice," Kharge said.

Instead of debating issues of the people, the government conducted debate till late night for its agenda of communal polarisation, Kharge said in an apparent reference to the debate on the Waqf (Amendment) Bill.

He pointed out that the debate on Manipur took place at 4 am and he requested that it be held the next day but the government did not agree, Kharge said and alleged that it seems the government wants to hide something.

"Democracy is being finished slowly, slowly, slowly," Kharge alleged.

He said the opposition was not allowed to raise in Parliament the issue of imposition of tariffs by the US.He said monopoly is being established with resources being handed to a few crony capitalists.

Kharge also alleged that SC, ST and OBC reservation was being finished through privatization.

Anti-Dalit mindset: Rahul slams BJP after leader 'purifies' Rajasthan temple

AHMEDABAD: Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Wednesday accused the BJP of having an "anti-Dalit mindset" after its leader sprinkled Ganga water at a Ram temple in Rajasthan's Alwar to "purify" it following Congress' Tikaram Jully's participation in the consecration ceremony there.

He also asserted that the country will be run by the Constitution and its ideals, not by 'Manusmriti' "which considers Bahujans as second class citizens". The Congress on Tuesday had

When contacted, Ahuja told PTI that he took the step because of Congress leaders' view and approach towards Lord Ram and not because Jully is a "Dalit".

Jully, on the other hand, claimed that Ahuja's act was indicative of the BJP's mentality towards Dalits.

He claimed it was not only an attack on his faith but also an effort to promote the crime of untouchability.

UP has been a sacred land of Jain Tirthankaras, says CM Adityanath on World Navkar Mahamantra Day

Six Years On, Hajin's Mini Secretariat Still Incomplete

BANDIPORA: The much-awaited Mini Secretariat in Hajin Tehsil of Bandipora district remains unfinished six years after its construction began in 2019.

Initially proposed to bring major relief to the people of Hajin by housing all key administrative offices under one roof, the delay in its completion has led to growing public concern.

Currently, various government departments are functioning from scattered and rented accommodations across the tehsil. This disjointed setup is causing significant inconvenience to the local population, who are forced to move from one location to another to get their official work done. The absence of a centralized administrative facility has not only hampered efficiency but also added to the daily challenges of visitors.

Locals say the current setup is causing significant inconvenience, with people having to travel from one location to another for basic administrative tasks. "It is extremely difficult, especially for the elderly and those from far-flung areas. One has to visit multiple buildings to get even a single job done," said Abdul Gani, a resident of Hajin.

Residents urged the district administration and the elected MLA to intervene and expedite the construction. "The foundation stone was laid with much fanfare, but after that, progress has been painfully slow. We appeal to the Deputy Commissioner Bandipora and our local MLA to prioritize this long-pending project," said another local.

The incomplete project is being seen as a missed opportunity for improving public service delivery in the region. With public pressure mounting, locals hope the authorities will take swift action to ensure the early completion of the Mini Secretariat.

MUDRA at 10

As the Pradhan Mantri MUDRA Yojana (PMMY) completes a decade since its launch in 2015, it marks more than just a policy milestone—it reflects a shift in India's development narrative. Designed to offer collateral-free credit to micro and small enterprises, MUDRA has, over the years, emerged as one of the most inclusive and impactful economic interventions in post-liberalisation India.

The scheme, divided into three credit categories— Shishu, Kishor, and Tarun—has provided loans ranging from ₹50,000 to ₹10 lakh to over 40 crore $beneficiaries, the \, majority\, of \, them\, from\, under served$ and underbanked sections. What makes MUDRA transformative is not merely the volume of credit disbursed, but the socio-economic empowerment it has enabled at the grassroots level. From rural artisans and vegetable vendors to tailors and small manufacturers, MUDRA has democratised access to credit for those often overlooked by traditional banking systems.

In a country where self-employment and informal sector businesses form the economic backbone. MUDRA has bridged the credit gap that stifled small entrepreneurs. It has also helped in mainstreaming women and youth into entrepreneurial activity nearly 68% of MUDRA loan accounts are held by women and over 50% belong to SC/ST and OBC beneficiaries. This inclusive design has served not only as a financial lifeline but as a tool of social

However, the road ahead demands more than celebration. The next decade of MUDRA must focus on enhancing loan utilisation tracking, reducing Non-Performing Assets (NPAs), and ensuring timely repayments. Training in financial literacy, digital tools, and business management must become an integral part of the scheme to ensure that borrowers not only survive but thrive. Access to credit must be complemented with access to markets, technology, and formal networks.

Back to November, But At What Cost?

When the structure of time is altered, the responsibility to adapt must be matched with support, not silence.

In recent years, our educational system has seen multiple reform efforts, but one of the most talked-about is the restoration of the October-November academic session by the current government under the leadership of Chief Minister Omar Abdullah. This session structure had existed for years before being altered by the previous LG-led administration, in order to implement "Uniform Academic Policy" which shifted it to March. Now, with the return of an elected government, the earlier session has been promptly reinstated. While the move is intended to provide relief from harsh winters and better align with the national academic framework, its abrupt implementation has surfaced several challenges that demand immediate and thoughtful intervention.

This shift, although welcome in spirit, has brought both convenience and complication. The current academic year will now span barely 6 to 7 months. In such a short duration, completing the entire syllabus has become an overwhelming task for students and teachers alike especially in demanding streams like medical/JEE where even 10 to 11 months often fall short. Coaching centres, already packed with back-to-back batches, are struggling to compress months of content into mere weeks.

With school hours now running from 9:00 AM to 3:00 PM, and coaching centres starting their sessions post 3:00 PM until 7:00 PM, the day has become incredibly hectic for students. Coaching centres can't function during school hours, and thus, the learning time outside formal schooling is significantly restricted. Students now shuttle between two learning spaces, barely getting time to rest or reflect, let alone revise. With classes starting late in the afternoon and stretching into the evening, one wonders how meaningful instruction can truly be delivered in such a crammed schedule.

To cope with this transition, students must now think smart and act smarter. It's no longer sufficient to rely solely on offline classes. A hybrid approach leveraging both online and offline resources can empower students to not just keep up with the syllabus but also secure adequate time for revision. Access to recorded lectures, digital notes, mock tests, and doubt-clearing sessions can greatly ease the pressure on young minds.

The time has also come to revamp governing qualified staff, thousands of students prefer Educational institutions should be more than examination factories; they should be spaces where integrity is instilled, empathy is encouraged, and social responsibility is shaped. private schools. The reason is simple: outdated infrastructure, passive teaching methods, and lack of accountability.

If we truly want government institutions to thrive, they must embrace modern education systems. From smart classrooms and interactive labs to extracurricular development and life skills training, every element of the schooling experience needs a 360-degree upgrade. In line with competitive demands, subjective assessments must be supplemented with OMR-based testing to prepare students for national-level exams.

The Directorate of Education must not wait for a crisis to take action. Teachers need to be trained and motivated to conduct extra classes both online and offline. Incentivising their involvement and recognising their contribution can breathe new life into the teaching community. If we expect miracles from teachers, we must empower them with tools, training, and trust.

But let's not stop at calendar reforms. Our education system today is a patient showing signs of chronic illness. We're churning out batches of $degree\,holders\,replete\,with\,theoretical\,information$ but lacking in practical life skills. Graduates roam the streets with files and resumes, while the job market remains indifferent to their qualifications.

We must ask ourselves: What good is a degree on theoretical knowledge while ignoring the realworld skills that today's job market demands. It's time our curriculum reflects the needs of the 21st century by integrating vocational training, digital literacy, entrepreneurship, communication skills, and financial awareness—so students are not just educated, but truly empowered to build their futures.

We are far behind the pace of the modern world. While the globe is experimenting with AI, robotics, green technologies, and futuristic careers, we are still caught up in rote learning. There's a dire need to introduce students to diverse fields-sports, media, cinema, IT, agriculture, environmental sciences, and business innovation.

If a child is gifted in sports, let that talent be nurtured alongside academics. If someone dreams of being an artist or an app developer, let them find mentors and platforms from school itself. Education must not produce passive job seekers but proactive job creators.

More than ever, education must go beyond textbooks and technology it must nurture character. We don't just need professionals; we need principled individuals. A nation's strength lies not only in its infrastructure, but in the integrity of its citizens. If our students emerge academically brilliant but morally disconnected, we risk building Promote digital learning alongside physical classrooms. Restore values and ethics as a central part of education. Upgrade libraries, labs, and infrastructure across institutions. And finally, let the school environment be one of openness—not a prison of pressure. Let children breathe, explore, and express. Let them make mistakes and learn. Because true education is not about suppressing voices but nurturing potential.

Bottom line: Become More Aware. Let us become more aware of what's truly worth our time and energy. Reform is not a luxury-it is an urgent need. Let's not wait for another batch of students to suffer under an outdated system. Change begins with awareness, and awareness begins with you.

MYSTIC THOUGHTS

PART III

Freedom To Flourish For Muslim Women: Diversity Of Opinions And Rights Discourse

DR MAROOF SHAH

Certain ahadithincluding the following constitute basis for mercy and ease:

- "La darara wa la dirara fil Islam" [no harm shall be inflicted or tolerated in Islam]
- The Prophet only chose the easier of two alternatives so long as it did not amount to a sin.
- "Allah loves to see that His concessions (rukksah) are observed, just as He loves to see that His strict laws (azaa-im) are observed".

The above would confirm that no unnecessary rigour is recommended in the enforcement of commands and that the Muslims should avail of the flexibility and concessions of Shariah. As Ghazzali expounded, Maslahah consists of considerations which secure a benefit or prevent a harm.

Another related point complementing the point on ease and open-endedness is attitude of humility advocated in the tradition. Instead of saying what does Islam say we should ask what do Muslim jurists say on this or that point say Caliphate/Islamic State, rights of religious/sexual minorities/women, freedom of belief/ disbelief, triple talaq, qurbani, permissibility of music, compatibility of modern banking with Islam, dress code and grooming/hair code. To claim that Islam says this or that about issues that are often debated (we don't debate invariant value/ethical coordinates), is, generally speaking, problematic. We can only strive to know (to make best approximations) what Islam says/God really means/ intends on questions usually asked - on other questions that are more foundational we usually don't need to ask and do largely know what Islam says as we know what our fitrah demands or what aql-i saleem requires or what conscience allows. And jurists differ in their conclusions on almost all these questions. They don't differ in matters of worship to significant extent and that explains why none including Muslim modernists/reformists asks for reconstructing them. In transactions (muamalat) they are bound to differ and long back they have agreed to disagree (thus, as has been remarked by a modern scholar, synthesizing two apparently opposite traditionally rehearsed teachings "My community will not agree on error" "Difference of opinion in my ummah is a mercy"). It means Shariah in practice becomes open ended and we can't close the debate that this or that is the Islamic view of it and hence uncontested. Before one can go for it or for any rigid polemics for and against the host of legal opinions that are hotly debated (our sermons and book shops are stuffed with this polemics on issues that God hardly minds and that require/invite divergent legitimate responses - and one wants to laugh at the anxiety to suppress difference), one needs to consider the following qualifiers or filters that force us to recognize essentially tentative nature of our views and give benefit of doubt to other opinions.

In fact we find the earliest instances dialogue in classical age being close to this ideal – everyone, not just majority, often, agrees on the solution proposed after discussion. Isn't it sad to note that the issues of democracy, mixing of schools of fiqh, many modern economic and social institutions, travel without muharram relative, women drivers/heads of larger institutions including state, burqa/hijab imposition, views on philosophy and Sufism, supposed innovations in popular piety/devotion, divorce etc. violently divide us to this date?

Figh is the attempt to think and concretize Shariah and it differs not just from school to school but even from jurist to jurist. Since God wants to save all souls or make the world livable for everyone who agrees not to destroy it for others, and people differ from region to region, from time to time, from stage to stage of their lives, fiqhadapts accordingly. Fiqh is open ended - we are invited to exert ourselves in choosing their decisions so that God's intention is fulfilled - there are situations where no figh manual comes to our help and we stand naked before God/conscience. It is interesting to find all kinds of opinions within the prescribed limits entertained by Muslim jurists and we find upbringing, $politics, the ology, considerations \, of \, public \, good \, etc. \, impacting \, on \,$ them. Regarding the much debatedhudood ordinances in Islamic law, it is noteworthy how Islam's theory of limits, as framed in Muhammad Sharur (whose reception has been much affected by some of his controversial views and simplistic reductionist view of mysticism) in contemporary times, makes man free to choose from one end of the spectrum to the other without incurring any sin. Applying mathematical notion of limit (to the Quranic notion of hadd) developed by mathematicians of the West, certain old controversies in hudood/inheritance laws get reframed and appear almost resolved. He has argued that "Allah set the limits for the law whose upper and lower boundaries encompass the scope of legislation that human societies are allowed to explore freely."

Since it is very hard to ascertain the precise meaning/intention of the author of Sharia and one can't, ordinarily, vouch for one's interpretation as the final one, one can't delegitimize other possible interpretations. There is so much freedom to legislate and all we have been given is limits that must not be transgressed. The dialogue must go on while we keep striving for knowing the meaning intended by the Canon.

Liberal vs. Conservative Women Debate

 $Regarding \, number \, of \, questions \, that \, divide \, more \, conservative \, \\ and \, liberal \, women \, - \, shaping \, of \, brows, \, veil \, or \, particular \, mode \, \$ of dressing or appearance in public and one may add various questions one can see on various websites or modern fiqh works – the following general remarks may be kept in consideration.

• Many fuqaha have clarified that it remains to be determined if routine shaping of brows amounts to cursed mutilation or qualifies the act as nams and it appears in the opinion of many it isn't to beframed as nams that distinguished women of loose character in that specific context of Arabian culture. Divergence of options amongst equally qualified jurists amounts to room for any opinion that strikes one as more true to one's lived experience of faith or spirit of it or passes the court of our conscience that has been approved as the Court when one is in doubt. For any question one should first question the anxiety to question. God and His Prophet didn't like the zeal to ask too many questions and have chosen silence or in principle

• Farhad draws our attention to Al-Nawawai's remarks on the hadith recorded in the Muslim in which Abu Salamah said: that "The wives of the Prophet (pbuh) used to cut their hair until it came just below their ears." "Al-Nawawi quotes from Qadhi Ayyaz that it appears that the wives of the prophet (pbuh) would do this after the death of the prophet (pbuh) to avoid embellishment and to be able to manage their hair better. Al-Nawawi then writes: 'in this (hadith) is evidence of allowing cutting hair for women and God knows best' (Sharh al-Nawawi, 4:5).

Farhad is point blank in stating his views against segregation:

I can assure you that there are no strict restrictions on the working of the women outside, mixed with other men. This is

The hadiths that appear to prohibit cutting hair are referring to a kind of cutting hair that gives a look that is against the nature of a woman, as created by the Almighty.

I also do not believe that looking like non-Muslim women per se is an issue. Within the limits of modesty, as promoted in the Qur'an, looking similar to a non-Muslim is not forbidden.

There is a hadith in the book of Muslim, that is often used by the scholars who do not consider cutting hair for women to then writes: "in this (hadith) is evidence of allowing cutting hair for women and God knows best" (Sharh al-Nawawi, 4:5).

I can assure you that there are no strict restrictions on the working of the women outside, mixed with other men. This is a concept that has been developed among Muslims gradually, and only after the demise of the Prophet (pbuh), for various reasons. When you read the history and note how some Muslim women were active outdoors at the time of the Prophet (pbuh) you may agree with me that it seems like some Muslims at our time are more sensitive about gender interaction, compared to our beloved Prophet (pbuh)!

Farhad further notes that

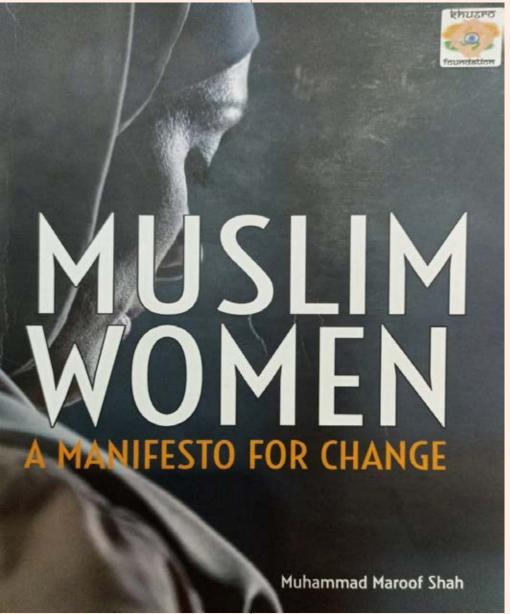

It is not changing the way that God has created a certain individual that is wrong, what is wrong is changing the way that God has created human beings. I can assure you that there are no strict restrictions on the working of the women outside, mixed with other men. This is a concept that has been developed among Muslims gradually, and only after the demise of the Prophet (pbuh), for various reasons. When you read the history and note how some Muslim women were active outdoors at the time of the Prophet (pbuh) you may agree with me that it seems like some Muslims at our time are more sensitive about gender interaction, compared to our beloved Prophet (pbuh)!

It is interesting to note the spectrum of opinions within the revivalist camp and internal debate within it on face veil and cutting of hair or public roles or wearing good looking abayas or wearing jeans under a loose long overcoat or brow shaping. Modernists or those classified as liberals seem to simply adopt one end of this spectrum or further open it up. It appears that we have gradually evolved responses that are less sharply defined or less judgmental of the other. It is hard to clench the argument for this or that position and we can agree to keep dialogue open and have the consolation that we shall face God on different terms or according to our divergent opinions of Him. What is clear is certain lack of clarity or intended ambiguity in matters that don't vitally or obviously affect our prospect for salvation. There is consensus on the following points anyway:

- That we shall be judged as per our sincere effort and understanding of God's will.
- That God's will as expressed in the canon is fraught with complexities and often sustains divergent readings
- That hadith corpus itself is open ended in a way and we can't foreclose the debate on authenticity and contextual considerations or diverse framing of several key traditions that are at the heart of the debate between rival Muslim camps and as such we can't afford too string views without granting some scope to the other opposite views.

given approval or ibahi asli to all things generally perceived as wholesome and that don't harm us. The Quran has given a list of four prohibited items and the prophetic sunnah has added to this list implied few items. Anything that contravenes moral and spiritual health stands disapproved and should be so and this is universal verdict of morally and spiritually alive people. Regarding burqa/hijab and how to appear in public, one may state that God is concerned with safeguarding human dignity. Whatever is compatible with modesty or decency and isn't flaunting of pathological ego- or is illusory deceitful expression - is what wouldn't invite God's/Reality's displeasure or hell. Against the picture of woman defended in modern neo-Salafi version as encapsulated in Rulings of Council of Religious Legal Opinions (C.R.L.O) listed in appendix to Speaking in God's Name of Khalid Abu al-Fadl we find version in Ghamidi, Asghar Ali Engineer and Farhad Shafti besides various Muslim feminist scholars including Merenessi, Rifat Hassan, Kecia Ali and Laila Bakhtiar. A few points from the later camp in Farhad Shafti are here presented to show the liberal-conservative divide and it will be followed by some reflections on possibility of bridging or recognizing divergent views and how is it possible to bypass their association with one's otherworldly prospects. response to CRLO present divergent views of two approaches

• Women have been told to abide by a number of rulings for which there is inconclusive evidence on the supposition that we have been directed to avoid the doubtful. Alluding to oft quoted hadith calling for avoiding the doubtful, Farhad argues for need to read it in conjunction with another one from Ibn Majah,

This is because taklif (wujub) only comes with certainty. This certainty is available regarding a handful of issues and thus vast corpus of fiqh rulings.

Replying to the query regarding hadith stating that the women with head like a camel hump will not enter paradise," Farhad in his blogs on www.exploringislam.comnotes that the hadith invoked here.

has nothing to do with any kinds of innocently covering a long hair in any fashion. The hadith is clearly referring to women who have inappropriate behavior. 'Heads like humps of camel' is only one of their signs. The problem with these women therefore is not the style of hair, but their evil behaviour.

Second, 'heads like humps of camel' can have many meanings, as the scholars have explained. To interpret it to mean covering a long, ponytail like hair, is only an interpretation. The wording itself does not say that.

a concept that has been developed among Muslims gradually, and only after the demise of the Prophet (pbuh), for various reasons. When you read the history and note how some Muslim women were active outdoors at the time of the Prophet (pbuh) you may agree with me that it seems like some Muslims at our time are more sensitive about gender interaction, compared to our beloved Prophet (pbuh)!

Farhad enters into lengthy and sophisticated engagement with critics and alludes to such instances as Amra bint Nahik al-Asadiyah, a female companion of the Prophet (pbuh) who used to act as an inspector for businesses at the time of the Prophet to question religious sanction of seclusion of women in Islam. Here one recalls extremely vocal critic of seclusion and veil, Nazira Zayn Al-Din (d. 1976), who wrote Al-Sufur wa Al- ijabin which she showed how problematic is the view regarding need of seclusion of women. In similar vein Abd al-Halim Abu Shiqqah (b. 1924) writes in Tahrir al-mar'ah fi 'asr al-risalah (The Emancipation of Women during the Time of the Prophet):

Through my study of the time of the Prophet I found texts and sayings of the Prophet which show women acting in all kinds of professions in total difference to what we see, understand and interpret today. This great discrepancy explained to me why so many women got away from (Islam) because it simply deprived them of the rights of life; that is why I felt it my duty to free the women from the habits and rules of jahiliyya which are mistakenly thought to be Islamic.

Farhad adds a damning comment: "if the criteria is whether there will be an attraction then basically we need to put the men and women in two different planets." And gives his verdict on this point:

The Qur'an has never forbade women to be in the public, and only advises them (and men) to be modest in their behaviour. Do you think a woman cannot be attractive to men if she covers her whole body? There are Hadiths suggesting that the Prophet (pbuh) allowed girls singing in his presence. Do you think that could not be attractive for those who wanted to be attracted?

On cutting hair Farhad has this to say:

Cutting hair per se cannot be called forbidden. We would need strong and explicit directive in the Qur'an or the Established Sunnah for such forbiddance and we don't have any. This is also the view of many traditional scholars of Islam.

, was turned into a battleground, Unfortunately, the BJP, with deliberate intent, disrupted the proceedings and repeatedly blocked our attempts to speak. What was even more shameful was the tactical support extended to them by the PDP, PC, and a few others. Instead of standing with us in defense of religious rights and constitutional values, they chose to stand with the very party that is dismantling them. On a day when over 300 Members of Parliament across the country opposed this Bill, they chose silence on the first day And worse, complicity on the other. Their betrayal will not be forgotten. While the Assembly could have served as a forum to express our concerns, the real battle must now be fought in the Supreme Court." he said.

Sadiq said by approaching the Supreme Court the party is sending a stronger and unequivocal message that the party will oppose it legally and not just for any fanfare.

"Let us be very clear, while we could have raised these concerns inside the Assembly, doing so would have only recorded our opposition. By approaching the Supreme Court, we are sending a stronger message: we will fight this legally, constitutionally, and with full determination. We are confident that justice will prevail,"he further added.

"At the same time, The developments in the Assembly led to yet another, even more serious consequence—the vital and long-overdue resolution for the restoration of Jammu and Kashmir's statehood was not introduced. This critical resolution carried immense significance, as it represents a core demand that lies at the heart of our people's aspirations," he said

"Let us remind everyone, statehood is not a demand, it is a democratic right. It is central to the identity, dignity, and empowerment of the people of Jammu and Kashmir. The Jammu & Kashmir National Conference will continue to strongly and unequivocally advocate for the restoration

He also appreciated the speaker of the house for taking into account the sense of house against the Waqf amendment bill 2025. "The Honourable Speaker expressed the sentiment of the House and, taking into account the sense of the House, clearly stated that it is evident this House is against the Waqf Amendment Bill. The fact that this has now been officially recorded is exactly what we had hoped for," he said.

When we know ourselves then one thing becomes clear that God has not given this life for small things but there is a big purpose behind it and that is selfless service to society and welfare of all living beings," the Lieutenant Governor said.

among promising recognised early and growth stage startups across 10 high impact sectors wherein 2400 startups participated from across the country. The awards were given on the eve of concluding ceremony of Startup Mahakumbh organised by the DPIIT at Bharat Mandapan, New Delhi from 3rd April to 5th April, 2025.

With a funding pool of over Rs. 70 crore, the challenge not only offered grant support but also provided startups with national recognition, global exposure, structured mentorship, incubation opportunities and access to leading investor networks

Five startups from Jammu and Kashmir participated in the Startup Mahakumbh 2025, namely GR8 Sports Private Limited (Gaming & Sports), CLMRAT Sports, AL-Hamdaan Crafts, Studio Agama, BISA Innovation Private Limited. These startups were led by Irtif Mehraj Lone, In-charge Centre for Innovation, Incubation and Business Modeling (CIIBM), JKEDI and Zahid Ali Dar, Project Manager, JKEDI.

The J&K Industries and Commerce Department has played a pivotal role in laying a strong foundation for the startup ecosystem in the Union Territory. The recognition of these two promising startups from Jammu and Kashmir demonstrates a growing startup ecosystem in the UT. The department has not only formulated a vibrant J&K Startup Policy-2024, but has also taken necessary steps for ensuring its speedy implementation through the designated Nodal agency, viz., the Jammu and Kashmir Entrepreneurship Development Institute (IKEDI).

Sharing his thoughts on the achievement, Arjun Gupta, Founder of Genetico Private Limited, said, "It is wonderful that our years of hard work and commitment are being recognized by the government. There is a highly motivated and capable team behind Genetico. The award is not only for the founders but their team, customers, government, incubators, advisors, mentors and well-wishers."

Fawz-ul-Kabir, Founder of GR8 Private Limited, expressed gratitude stating, "We are truly honoured to represent Jammu and Kashmir on such a prestigious platform. This recognition reaffirms our belief in the power of gaming and technology to drive positive impact. We thank the J&K Government and JKEDI for their unwavering support."

Notably, the Government of Jammu & Kashmir has allocated Rs. 50.00 crore for 2025-26 fiscal for implementation of J&K Startup Policy 2024-27. The funds shall be utilized for various components, including providing seed funding to eligible startups, startup awards, grants for setting up and scaling incubators, mentorship support, awareness and innovation-driven initiatives, aimed at strengthening the startup ecosystem across the Union Territory.

Power generation

"Currently, we are able to produce more than 60 percent of power against the total generation capacity of 1197.4 MW," the official said.

Pertinently, till the third week of February, an official had said that Jammu and Kashmir was relying on more than 85 percent of coal and solar power amid acute deficit of hydro power generation.

Officials of PDD department had claimed that local hydro power generation from the local power plants have reduced by nearly 90 percent.

An official had informed that "At present Jammu and Kashmir is 85-90 percent dependent on coal and solar energy that is being procured from the other states because as of now we don't have a local power generation."

"In winters the local hydro power generation of Jammu and Kashmir power plants has reduced by almost 90 percent and in order to cater the requisite power demand, we need to have a base power availability that we procure from outside states. The energy is coal based energy," the official had said.

remaining, the garden is on track to achieve an unprecedented visitor turnout.

This surge in footfall highlights the garden's growing global appeal and its key role in promoting tourism and showcasing the natural splendour of lammu & Kashmir.

Pertinently, with 1.7 million bulbs, the garden was thrown open for the general public on March 26. The famous Indira Gandhi Memorial Tulip Garden is having two more varieties imported from the Netherlands this year. 100 gardeners and casual labourers have made hectic efforts to complete all the processes and make the garden ready for the public.

On the inaugural day (March 26), the garden witnessed an overwhelming response from tourists. It recorded an unprecedented footfall of 17,259 visitors, setting a new record.

Pertinently, 4.5 lakh visitors visited the garden last year, surpassing all the previous records.

It is worth mentioning here that Tulip Garden in summer capital earned a spot in World Book of Records (London) as Asia's largest in 2023.

In 2024, Asia's largest Tulip Garden experienced an extraordinary surge in tourism, with a staggering 4.45 lakh visitors flocking to witness its vibrant blooms, including approximately 2,000 from foreign shores.

"Among the various issues, the biggest is the regularisation of the daily wagers, which the National Conference government and Chief Minister Omar Abdullah had promised to fulfil. But they do not want discussions on them," Sharma said.

The BJP's demands that daily wagers be regularised and employment avenues be debated in the House so that the government can respond on the measures it is taking to address these issues, he said.

"Instead, the government is running away from the discussion to avoid accountability. To prevent such debates, members are deliberately creating chaos in the House," the LoP said. He said no budgetary provision has been made for these promises. "Omar Abdullah made big promises about eliminating unemployment, claiming they would provide 5,00,000 jobs. That would mean 50,000 jobs in six months. But nothing was delivered," Sharma said.

Taking a dig at the government, the BJP leader said, "Instead, the Omar Abdullah government appointed a relative of a National Conference leader as a consultant in the Tourism Department through the backdoor. This is what is being done for daily wagers and unemployed youth of J&K." He criticised the NC members accusing them of paralysing the Assembly for three days. "The treasury benches are deliberately not allowing the House to function. This is a fixed match," he said.

Levelling serious allegations against NC leaders, he said they are trying to shield those involved in land-grabbing cases in the garb of Waqf law. The demography of Jammu has been changed by a particular community by encroaching massive lands under the patronage of governments, he alleged.

"We congratulate the Speaker for upholding the integrity of the House and adhering to the law by rejecting this proposal so that the Waqf Bill could be discussed," he said.

Hesaid the Budget Session is the only opportunity to highlight and resolve the concerns of MLAs and the public but even this is being squandered.

"Since March 3, when this session began, BJP members have been trying to raise the people's issues in the Assembly but the government is evading accountability and avoiding all discussions on the promises made to the public," LoP Sharma said. (Agencies)

We batted a bit bitter, but it's been a frustrating season for CSK: Fleming was relieved to see Chennai Super Kings' top-order producing some runs, but, for him, the failure of his side to cross the line in the fourth consecutive IPL match this season remained a "frustrating" element. CSK batters gave a better account of themselves in pursuit of 220 set by Punjab Kings, but still fell short of the target by 18 runs here on Tuesday.

"It (has been) a frustrating season so far," Fleming told the media after the match.

"The catching has been poor, but it was poor from both sides. Whether it was something in the light, I'm not sure, but certainly for us that was an area of concern. If you want to pick up 20 runs, it's probably that and (the) drop catches," he said.

Fleming had a point there because CSK haveso far dropped 11 catches in five matches, with three of them occurring against Punjab Kings.

The Kiwithen touched upon CSK's improved batting effort as openers Devon Conway and Rachin Ravindra put on 69 runs, following which the former added another 89 runs for the third wicket with Shivam Dube (42).

"Well, positive-wise, we batted a bit better. We got some substance from the top order, which has been lacking so we were able to then construct the chase," Fleming said.

"We just weren't able to keep the run rate at a good level through the middle, and it just left too much towards the end. But we've been out of games, so to be in a game for a lot longer is a positive aspect. The game was really lost in the field," he added.

Fleming heaped praise on Punjab Kings' batter Priyansh Arya, who made a 42-ball 103 despite regular fall of wickets at the other end.

"We were just a little bit sloppy. We were put under pressure, and the young man had Digvesh Rathi in Lucknow (Super Giants)... the players who did well for the state league,"

"Well, firstly, he had a day out, didn't he? He played very well right from the first ball. It's very brave when you come off a first ball dismissal to look to play a shot like that," Fleming said.

"Our fault was we were too wide. The plan was to bowl straight at the stumps and create some pressure that way. The first ball we bowled straight, we created a caught and bowled chance, and that changes the night some amazing shots. We succumbed a little bit to that pressure by putting the ball in areas that he was stronger in, and we just didn't adjust quick enough," he said.

Punjab Kings' Shashank Singh, who struck a 36-ball 52 and forged two vital partnerships to help his side recover from a perilous position of 83/5, said state-based T20 competitions are important to discover talents like Arya.

"I am really in favour of these leagues

"These (competitions) are really good because obviously you get an opportunity to play under lights, play with Kookaburra ball and play in those pressure situations.

"You get to know the character of the player as well apart from skills, because skills obviously most of them have but the mental toughness, the character you get to see in the state leagues," Singh added.

"The catching has been poor, but it was poor from both sides. Whether it was something in the light, I'm not sure, but certainly for us that was an area of concern. If you want to pick up 20 runs, it's probably that and (the) drop catches," he said.

Rahane steers clear of 'chaos', will discuss Eden pitch with IPL authorities

"I prefer not to speak. If I speak, I'm in big trouble," Jose Mourinho famously muttered after a narrow defeat for Chelsea in 2014. That had to do with the refereeing in that game against Aston Villa. On Tuesday, Kolkata Knight Riders (KKR) captain Ajinkya Rahane said pretty much the same thing. "Agar main kuch bolunga na toh bawal ho jayega" ("If I say anything, it'll create chaos)."

He didn't need to elaborate. After KKR fell short by just four runs in an IPL 2025 game where their spinners had little impact against Lucknow Super Giants (LSG), the murmurs around the Eden Gardens surface, and whether it plays to the strengths of the home side, began swirling again.

"Let me just keep it that way. Jo humare curator hai, unko bahut publicity mila hai (this discussion has just given our curator a lot of publicity)," Rahane went on to add in the postmatch press conference. "Whatever you'd like to write about home advantage, you can go ahead. If I have any concerns, I will talk to the IPL about it, rather than you guys, and discuss with the concerned authorities."

With 238 playing 234, bowlers of all kinds were clattered around the park, but for KKR to not use all eight overs of spin at home went against popular wisdom. Sunil Narine was hit for two fours and three sixes in his three-over wicketless spell of 38. The other spinners on view-Varun Chakravarthy, Digvesh Rathi and Ravi Bishnoi - did complete their overs.

Bishnoi, too, was hit for six fours and two sixes. While Varun and Rathi finished with their reputations intact, going at 7.75 and 9.25 respectively, and occasionally troubled the batters with their variations, there was little turn on offer in the afternoon game.

"Firstly, there was no help for the spinners, let me clear $\,$ that," Rahane said when asked why Narine's quota was not completed. "They used the longer boundary really well. Our bowlers tried as well, but again, Nicholas Pooran (87* in 36 balls) and Mitchell Marsh (81 in 48) batted really well. In between, they took their chances, which came off really well for them. It was a lovely wicket [to bat on], we all saw that, scoring almost 500 runs [472] on this track. Hard for the bowlers, but they used the conditions and the boundary well.'
