Never seen any RS chairperson make such political comments: Kapil Sibal on Dhakhar's judiciary remarks

NEW DELHI: Rajya Sabha member Kapil Sibal slammed Vice President lagdeep Dhankhar on Friday for questioning the judiciary over the timeline for the president to take decisions, saying this is "unconstitutional" and he had never seen any Rajya Sabha chairman make "political statements" of this nature.

Aday after Dhankhar used strong words against the judiciary, Sibal asserted that the Lok Sabha Speaker and the Rajya Sabha Chairman remain equidistant between the opposition and the ruling party, and cannot be the "spokesperson of the party".

"Everyone knows that the Lok Sabha Speaker's chair is in between. He or she is the Speaker of the House, not the speaker of one party. They also don't vote, they only vote when there is a tie. The same is with the upper house. You are equidistant between the opposition and the ruling party," the senior advocate said at a press conference here.

"Everything you say must be equidistant. No speaker can be the spokesperson of a party. I don't say that he (Dhankhar) is but no Speaker in principle can be the spokesperson of any party. If it appears so then the dignity of the chair is lowered,"

Dhankhar on Thursday questioned the judiciary setting a timeline for the president to take decisions and act as a "super Parliament", saying the Supreme Court cannot fire a "nuclear missile" at democratic forces.

Dhankhar's strong words to the judiciary came during his speech to Rajya Sabha interns, days after the Supreme Court sought to fix a timeline for the president to grant assent to the bills reserved for her consideration by the governor.

"So, we have judges who will legislate, who will perform executive functions, who will act as super Parliament and absolutely have no accountability because the law of the land does not apply to them," Dhankhar said.

He also described Article 142, which grants plenary powers to the Supreme Court, as a "nuclear missile against democratic forces available to the judiciary 24×7".

Slamming Dhankhar for his remarks, Sibal said, "If you give such statements it will look as if judiciary is being taught a lesson. It Is not neutral and not constitutional." The judiciary should not be attacked in this manner by the executive, especially two ministers - Arjun Ram Meghwal and Kiren Rijiju - and the chairman of the house, as the judiciary cannot defend itself.

'Then the polity must defend the judiciary. Independence of the judiciary is fundamental to democracy in the country. What is being done is unconstitutional,"

"I have never seen any chairman of the House make political statements of this nature. Even BIP chairman in the past (have not done so)," Sibal said, hitting out at Dhankhar.

Sibal said he was saddened and surprised by the statement of Dhankhar.

"Judicial institutions - high courts or Supreme Courts, if there is faith in any institution, it is the judiciary. I feel that when government people do not like the decisions of the judiciary then the start accusing that it (judiciary) has gone beyond its limit. When they like it and the opposition says something then they say it is the decision of the Supreme Court," the former Congress leader said.

When someone raises questions about Article 370 or Ramjanam bhoomi judgement, the government people point out that it is a Supreme Court decision, he said.

"When (Justice JB) Pardiwala judgement came they say how can the Supreme Court say this. The judgement which you do not like is wrong and which is as per your thinking, it is fine. It is not right for a constitutional functionary to say such a thing," Sibal said referring to Dhakhar's remarks.

"I respect him a lot but you said article 142 is nuclear missile material, how can you say this? Article 142 has given powers to the Supreme Court and it is given by the Constitution, it is not by the government it is the Constitution to do complete justice," Sibal said.

He also pointed out that the President of India is a titular head and acts on the aid and advice of the council of ministers.

"The governor acts on the aid and advice of the council of ministers in a state. So when a bill is passed it goes to the governor, the governor can make comments and send it back but if passed again, the governor has to give an assent as stated in the Constitution. The governor can send the bill to the president. President acts on the aid and advice of the ministers, so the matter goes to the Centre. The president does not have personal powers," he said.

Dhankar said how can president's power be curtailed, Sibal noted and wondered who is curtailing the power of the President.

Can the governor sit for two years on a bill that is important for people, Sibal asked and added that this amounts to an intrusion on the supremacy of the legislature.

"If you have a problem with a judgement, call for a review. If there are still problems, take an advisory opinion from Supreme Court," Sibal said.

"He (Dhankhar) talked about 1984 but did not talk about 2002. You talked about an emergency bit not undeclared emergency that is going on, you did not talk about capture of institutions," Sibal said in a scathing criticism of Dhankhar's

He said it seems that he only talks about what happened in Congress governments and not after 2014.

"We moved an impeachment motion against judge of a high court in December; it was signed by more than 50 members. We are in April, it took five months to find out whether those signatures are genuine or not. How many more months would it take?" Sibal said.

"If you do not with expedition decide the matter then the argument for us is that we cannot do anything. If the governor doesn't not clear bills, the judiciary cannot do anything," he said. If the executive doesn't do its job the judiciary has to intervene, Sibal asserted.Article 142 of the Constitution gives the Supreme Court the power to issue orders that ensure "complete justice" in any matter before it.

In addition, designated charity-run private hospitals will also be brought under its ambit to expand social security coverage.

Currently, ESIC provides free treatment to about 18 crore people through 165 hospitals, over 1,500 dispensaries and around 2,000 empanelled hospitals.

Mandaviya said the EPFO has significantly improved its grievance redressal mechanism following the rollout of Version 2.01. with complaints being reduced to less than half.

With the introduction of EPFO 3.0, the organisation aims to further improve accessibility and efficiency.

The minister also highlighted efforts to extend social security to gig and platform workers, saying their current number exceeds one crore and is expected to double in the next five years.

As part of this initiative, the Ministry of Labour and Employment signed a memorandum of understanding on April 15 with food delivery platform Swiggy to integrate gig and logistics employment opportunities with the National Career Service (NCS) portal.

The partnership aims to create over 12 lakh job opportunities in the next two to three years.

Swiggy will list its delivery, logistics and support roles on the NCS portal, helping more workers access employment opportunities.

Mandaviya emphasised on the government's focus on ensuring the effective implementation of various labour laws and the Mines Safety Act as part of its broader commitment to workers welfare.

The minister concluded by saying the EPFO — one of the largest social security organisations in the world – remains committed to simplifying processes for members and improving the ease of doing business for employers.

ED arrests Noida realty company promoter in home buyers' fraud case

NEW DELHI: The Enforcement Directorate (ED) on Friday said it has arrested the main promoter of a Noida-based real estate company under the anti-money laundering law in a case linked to the alleged diversion of home buyers' funds worth Rs 107 crore.

Anil Mithas of the Unnati Group was taken into custody on April 16. A special Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA) court in Uttar Pradesh's Ghaziabad sent him to the ED's custody till April 24, the federal probe agency said in a statement.

The money-laundering case stems from FIRs filed by a Special Investigation Team (SIT) formed by the Uttar Pradesh government against Unnati Fortune Holdings Limited (UFHL) and its promoters for "cheating and fraud" of Rs 107 crore. The ED said its probe has found that an amount of Rs 522.9 crore was collected between 2012 and 2019 from home buyers by Unnati Fortune Holdings Limited and IVRCL Infrastructure and Projects Limited for a residential project named ARANYA located in Sector 119 in Uttar Pradesh's Noida.Instead of using the entire money for construction, the promoters used "some part" for the said purpose and "siphoned off" the rest by way of "fake loans and advances, share premium, advance payment for material, deposits etc." to various companies. The Noida project got stuck due to a lack of money, the ED said. An audit report of the company, prepared on the directions of the Uttar Pradesh Real Estate Regulatory Authority (UPRERA), showed "diversion" of Rs 107 crore worth funds, the agency said.

Former CJI Opts Out Of Dulat's Book Launch Function Amid Abdullah Controversy

NEW DELHI: Former Chief Justice of India TS Thakur has decided to skip former R&AW chief A S Dulat's book release function, citing the political storm over certain parts of the book concerning National Conference president Faroog Abdullah.

The book, "The Chief Minister and The Spy" was scheduled to be released later Friday by Justice (Retd) Thakur. This comes a day after Jammu and Kashmir

Chief Minister Omar Abdullah said in Jammu that his father and veteran politician Farooq Abdullah will not be attending the book release function. Farooq Abdullah on Wednesday dismissed Dulat's claims that he had "privately backed" the the sales of the top spy's forthcoming memoir. The Bharatiya Janata Party-led Centre abrogated Article 370, which granted special status to Jammu and Kashmir, on August 5, 2019, and bifurcated the erstwhile state into Union territories. In his response to Dulat's invitation, Justice (Retd) Thakur said, "While I had accepted your kind invitation to participate in the release function, I have since yesterday (Wednesday) seen a political storm brewing in the print and electronic media for certain parts of your book especially those attributing certain statements to (Farooq) Abdullah whom you admire and treat as a valued friend." The ex-CJI said Farooq Abdullah has also publicly "disowned, if not denounced" the statements attributed to him.

"In the circumstances, you would kindly appreciate that the raging controversy and its political overtones would be an embarrassment for me which I would like to avoid not only on account of my long and cordial association with the Abdullah family but also because as a totally apolitical person I would not like to be seen promoting or endorsing a book which is being disowned by the very person about whom the same has been written," Justice Thakur (retd) said.

The former chief justice said besides, Farooq Abdullah, who was supposed to be sharing the dais with journalist Vir Sanghvi for a discussion on the book, may also not be doing so.

"I am acutely conscious of the fact that my recusal on the eve of the launch would inconvenience and force you to look for a substitute but given the situation in which I am placed, you will forgive me for the discomfiture that it may cause to you or the publisher of the book," he said.

Putting Farmers First

At the 15th meeting of BRICS Agriculture Ministers, India sent a clear and powerful message to the world: agriculture must be inclusive, equitable, and sustainable — and small and marginal farmers must be placed at the heart of global agricultural policy. Union Agriculture Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan, representing India at the forum, not only reaffirmed India's commitment to its farmers but also laid out a robust blueprint for sustainable agriculture that balances food security, climate action, and rural empowerment.

In a world plagued by climate volatility, inflationary shocks, and mounting food insecurity, it is easy to overlook the plight of the smallholder farmer. What stands out in India's approach is its blend of tradition with technology. Initiatives like AgriStack, Climate-Resilient Villages, and the Drone Didi and Lakhpati Didi programs show how digital tools can drive transparency, service delivery, and female empowerment in agriculture. Equally important is India's emphasis on cluster-based farming, cooperative models, and Farmer Producer Organizations (FPOs), which foster collective bargaining power and improved market access for small farmers. The launch of the BRICS Land Restoration Partnership marks a new chapter in global agri-diplomacy. India's support for this initiative, combined with its own flagship programs like NMSA and NICRA, underlines a growing convergence of ecological stewardship and food policy. By focusing on restoring soil fertility and fighting desertification, BRICS nations are finally acknowledging that sustainable agriculture begins with healthy land and empowered communities. The Joint Declaration issued by BRICS reflects a broader, more humane vision of food systems—one that includes digital certification, fair trade, gender equity, and financial inclusion. But declarations must not remain on paper. The true test lies in coordinated action, funding for smallholder innovations, and a genuine shift away from extractive agri-models that have widened global inequalities. India's invitation to BRICS nations to participate in World Food India 2025 is more than symbolic — it is a call to innovate, collaborate, and build bridges between nations and farmers. As India roots its global vision in its ancient ethos of Sarve Bhavantu Sukhinah — may all be happy, may all be healthy—it reminds the world that sustainability must be seeded in equity, and progress must be harvested with compassion.

India has shown the way. Now, the world must walk with its farmers.

Observing Fire Services Week Amidst Frequent Fires

BY RAYEES AHMAD KUMAR

s India observes Fire Services
Week from April 14 to 20—commemorating the sacrifice of 66 brave personnel who lost their lives in the Victoria Dock explosion of 1944 in Mumbai—it is a moment of both tribute urgent and troubling picture—especially in regions like Jammu and Kashmir, where forest fires have become a seasonal nightmare and urban fires frequently displace families overnight.

A Force Beyond Firefighting

Beyond fire extinguishing, the Fire and Emergency Services department plays a vital role in disaster response. During the 2014 Kashmir floods, the coordination between disaster forces, the military, and fire personnel helped mitigate an otherwise worse catastrophe. On national occasions like Republic Day and Independence Day, the department's personnel demonstrate their snowfall have compounded the fire risk. The barren mountains and water scarcity have created alarming conditions for both extinguishing fires and maintaining the ecological balance. Forests across Pir Panjal, North, and South Kashmir have been ravaged by flames—posing not only a loss to biodiversity but also endangering the very lungs of our environment.

What's even more concerning is that ill-equipped forest officials and untrained local volunteers are often the only line of defense against raging wildfires. The absence of proper tools, coordination, and training has shown that awareness alone is not enough. A comprehensive, well-funded, and technologically driven strategy regulations, and quick-response units. The Way Forward

While observing Fire Services Week, let us go beyond ceremonial events. It is time for:

Modernization of equipment and training fire personnel for forest-specific emergencies.
Integrated disaster response plans that involve local communities, forest departments, and fire services.

Stricter legislation to restrict unregulated human activity in forests.

Widespread public education, especially in rural and forest-adjacent areas, about preventing accidental fires.

and reflection. The week serves not only as a solemn reminder of the risks faced by fire fighters but also as a call to action for citizens and authorities to unite in creating a safer, fire-resilient India.

This year's theme, "Unite to Ignite a Fire Safe India," emphasizes the collective responsibility of individuals, institutions, and communities in fire prevention. Activities such as public lectures, fire safety documentaries, poster campaigns, essay competitions, painting contests, and health checkups for personnel and the public reflect the department's robust efforts toward awareness and preparedness.

Yet, while these initiatives are commendable, the real-life challenges on the ground paint a more crisis management skills through daring stunts and drills, showcasing preparedness, discipline, and resolve

In schools, hospitals, and other public spaces, regular awareness drives—especially for women often engaged in household cooking—serve to educate citizens on handling fire-related emergencies. These grassroots campaigns are crucial, yet they need to be backed by policy and investment.

Climate Conditions Worsen the Crisis

This year, a long dry spell and meager must be adopted, involving fire services personnel who are specially trained in tackling forest fires.

Fires That Leave Families Homeless

Meanwhile, in residential and commercial zones, devastating fire incidents continue to raze homes and livelihoods within hours. Recent cases in Kishtwar, Kadipora Anantnag, Baramulla, Sonamarg, and Bandipora underline the urgent need to modernize fire response infrastructure. Millions worth of property have been lost—losses that could be prevented through advanced alarm systems, fireproof building materials, stricter combat fires early.

At a time when fire-related tragedies are increasingly affecting our forests and homes, community participation, policy intervention, and departmental strengthening must work in tandem. As responsible citizens, we must acknowledge that safeguarding natural resources is a shared civic duty, not just the responsibility of a few uniformed heroes.

Let Fire Services Week not be limited to rituals, but become a rallying cry for a fire-safe and environmentally secure India.

This year, a long dry spell and meager snowfall have compounded the fire risk. # The Essence of Islam: Harmonizing Devotion with Universal Welfare

SHABEER AHMAD LONE

"Verily," says the Koran," those who believe (the Moslems) and those who are Jews, Christians or Sabaeans ,whoever has faith in God and the last day(future existence) and worketh that which is right and good,- for them shall be the reward with their Lord; there will come no fear on them; neither shall they will be grieved." Sura v.69.

The same sentiment is repeated in the fifth sura; and a hundred other passages prove that Islam does not confine salvation to the followers of Mohammad (pbuh) alone: "To every one have we given a law and a way...And if Allah had pleased,

This dissonance calls for an urgent reexamination of Islamic teachings, where the core ethos of "all-sided welfare of all" is revived. By exploring Qur'anic injunctions, Hadith guidance, jurisprudential wisdom, historical precedents, and cross-cultural parallels, this study seeks to illuminate Islam's profound call for compassion and justice, offering rare and transformative insights that challenge prevailing paradigms and inspire a realignment with its true spirit.

The Qur'an profoundly articulates the essence of Islam as a harmonious integration of faith, justice, and universal welfare. True righteousness, as outlined in Surah Al-Baqarah (2:177), transcends ritualism, emphasizing belief in Allah and acts of compassion toward the needy, orphans, and society's vulnerable. This verse encapsulates the comprehensive nature of Islamic ethics, where belief in Allah is intricately tied to acts of charity and justice. Islam demands justice without bias (4:135) and stresses equality, as reflected in the principle of universal brotherhood (49:13). Wealth is not to be hoarded but shared for societal upliftment (9:34-35; 59:7), with charity likened to seeds that multiply manifold (2:261). The Qur'an inspires ently tied to the welfare of humanity, advocating for compassion, justice, and love in both personal and collective contexts. Ibn Khaldun's thought demonstrates that Islam's true essence lies in the integration of individual devotion with social welfare, where ethical governance, justice, and resource management create a harmonious, flourishing society. His insights provide a timeless framework for aligning spiritual commitment with the collective good, ensuring sustainable progress and justice for all. Nasr's "The Heart of Islam" emphasizes that devotion to God in Islam is intrinsically linked to social responsibility, justice, and compassion, offering practical guidance for the welfare of humanity. Similarly, Sayyid Qutb's "Fi Zilal al-Qur'an" asserts that Islam provides a dual framework of personal devotion and societal justice, applying Qur'anic teachings to foster global welfare.

Despite these clear directives, a concerning trend of ritualism has emerged in many Muslim communities. Repetitive non-obligatory pilgrimages, such as multiple Umrahs within short intervals, are often undertaken while pressing societal needs remain unmet. Reports suggest that billions of dollars are spent annually on such pilgrimages, yet many neighbors, Empires offered free healthcare to all, regardless of religion or status, exemplifying Islam's inclusive approach to welfare. These historical precedents demonstrate that Islam's teachings, when applied holistically, can lead to societies that thrive on principles of equity, compassion, and justice.

The universality of Islam's message resonates across cultures and traditions. For example, Buddhist teachings on compassion and Christian principles of "faith without works is dead" (James 2:17) align with Islam's emphasis on integrating belief with action. These parallels highlight the shared human aspiration for justice and care, reinforcing the need for Muslims to embody these values in their practices. The Qur'anic call to reflection-"Do they not reflect upon the Qur'an, or are there locks upon their hearts?" (47:24)-serves as a timeless reminder to revisit and realign priorities, ensuring that worship is not reduced to mere formality but is infused with purpose and impact.

To truly embody the essence of Islam, Muslims must reorient their focus from excessive ritualism to meaningful action. Acts of worship, such as pilgrimage and mosque construction, should not be pursued at the expense of pressing humanitarian needs. Instead, surplus wealth and resources should be channeled toward initiatives that address poverty, education, healthcare, and social injustice. The spiritual fulfillment derived from transforming lives far outweighs the transient gratification of repetitive rituals. Mosques must reclaim their historical role as centers of community service, fostering education, dialogue, and support for the underprivileged.

The essence of religion, particularly Islam, as envisioned by Mulla Sadra, Syed Nursi, Meister Eckhart, Schuon, alongside other key mystics who have emphasized the harmonization of devotion with universal welfare, from earliest to more recent times, include Rabia al-Adawiyya, Fudayl ibn Iyad, Al-Ghazali, Ibn Arabi, Rumi, Bahauddin Nagshband, Shah Waliullah al-Dihlawi, and Ibn Ata Allah al-Iskandari. These figures have significantly contributed to the understanding that spiritual devotion is inherently tied to the welfare of humanity, advocating for compassion, justice, and love in both personal and collective contexts.Ibn Khaldun's thought demonstrates that Islam's true essence lies in the integration of individual devotion with social welfare, where ethical governance, justice, and resource management create a harmonious, flourishing society...

The essence of Islam lies in harmonizing devotion with allencompassing welfare, creating a legacy of justice, compassion, and inclusivity. By internalizing the foundational teachings of the Qur'an, the prophetic example, and the rich legacy of Islamic history, Muslims can fulfill their role as stewards of humanity. This approach not only honors the spirit of worship but also ensures that Islam remains a timeless and transformative force for good, inspiring generations to come. True piety is found not in extravagance but in simplicity, not in repetition but in action, and not in isolation but in service to all.

The true spirit of Islam lies in harmonizing spiritual devotion with the pursuit of universal welfare, creating a symphony of compassion, justice, and inclusivity that transcends time and space. When acts of worship are aligned with acts of care, they become transformative, not only for individuals but also for societies. The Qur'an and Sunnah consistently call for this integration, urging believers to prioritize the needs of the vulnerable and the marginalized. Historical examples and teachings from across traditions reaffirm this ethos, reminding us that faith finds its highest expression in service. Today's challenges demand a revival of this essence, where resources are directed toward alleviating suffering and building equitable communities rather than indulging in excesses of ritualism. By reclaiming the timeless and profound message of Islam, we not only honor its legacy but also ensure its relevance as a guiding force for humanity. In embodying this vision, Muslims can fulfill their divine mandate as stewards of the Earth, cultivating a legacy of care and justice that uplifts all, resonating with the very purpose of existence itself.

"Who give alms, alike in prosperity and in success, and who master their anger, forgive others! God love the doers of good" sura iii.128."But those who misbehave, their works are like the mirage in a plain,- the thirsty count it water, till when he comes to it he finds nothing, but he finds that Allah is with him, and He will pay his account, for Allah is quick to take account." sura-xiii 11.

The Islam of Muhammad (pbuh ) is a life to be to live in the present "- a religion of right doing, right thinking, and rightspeaking, founded on the divine love ,universal charity ,and the equality of man in the sight of Allah, the religion which enshrines righteousness and justification by work deserves the true recognition of the lovers of humanity."-Mr. Cotter Morrison in his "Service of Man,

Islam from Salam (salama), in its primary sense, means to be tranquil, at rest, to have done one's duty, to have paid up, to be at perfect peace; striving after righteousness; in its secondary sense, to surrender to Him with whom peace is made. The noun derived from it means peace, greeting, safety, salvation. The essence of the ethical principles involved and embodied in Islam is summarised in the second chapter of the Koran:" There is no doubt in this book- a guidence to the pious, who believe in the Unseen, who observe the prayers, and distribute (charity) out of what we have bestowed on them; and who believe in that which we have commissioned thee with, in that we commissioned others with before thee, and who have assurance in the life to come; -these have received the direction of their Lord."

The bases on which the Islamic system is founded are; a belief in the unity, immateriality, power, mercy and supreme love of the creator; 2) charity and brotherhood among mankind;3) subjugation of the passions; 4) the outpouring of a grateful heart to the Giver of all good; 5) accountability for human actions in another existence. Appeal is made to the inner consciousness of humanity. The divine love and mercy of Allah enfolds creation. There are five most fundamental qualities for being truly religious without which one can claim to be religious but hardly qualify to be one, These are 1) Constant quest for truth; 2) to be humble 3) to be compassionate 4) to be transcendent invision 5)to be against myopic and imperfect establishment. The Auther of the Kashshaf thus sums up the essence of the Islamic teaching :"Seek again him who drives you away; give to him who takes away from you; pardon him who injures you; for Allah loveth that you should cast into the depth of your soul the roots of His perfection." Zamakhshari (the kashaf).

Islam, as a universal and timeless faith, transcends the confines of ritualism to embrace a comprehensive vision of spiritual and societal well-being. Rooted in the divine revelation of the Qur'an and exemplified by the life of the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him), it offers a holistic framework for individual transformation and collective welfare. The essence of Islam lies in its emphasis on justice, compassion, and balance, ensuring that acts of worship are deeply integrated with the service of humanity. However, contemporary practices often reflect an overemphasis on external rituals, such as repetitive pilgrimages and lavish mosque constructions, at the expense of addressing critical societal needs like poverty, education, and healthcare.

reminding humanity of their accountability for even the smallest deeds (99:7-8). It promotes forgiveness, compassion (3:134; 42:40), and reflection on divine wisdom (39:9; 47:24), urging believers to align devotion with active service for the collective good. These timeless teachings embody Islam's universal vision of justice, equity, and moral responsibility, uniting spiritual devotion with a commitment to the welfare of all. Similarly the teachings of the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) emphasize a profound balance between devotion to Allah and service to humanity, showcasing Islam's holistic approach to universal welfare. Similarly, the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him) emphasized that the highest form of worship lies in serving humanity, stating, that "The best of people are those who are most beneficial to others" (Al-Mu'jam Al-Awsat, Hadith 5787), and underscored the importance of caring for neighbors, declaring, "He is not a believer whose stomach is filled while his neighbor goes hungry" (Musnad Ahmad, Hadith 14494). Compassion and mercy were central to his message, as he affirmed, "Allah will not show mercy to him who is not merciful to others" (Sahih Bukhari, Hadith 6013). The Prophet encouraged acts of justice and charity, teaching that "The most beloved of deeds to Allah is to make a Muslim happy, to relieve him of hardship, to forgive his debt, or to feed his hunger" (Tabarani, Al-Mu'jam Al-Kabeer, Hadith 13646). He further emphasized the value of simplicity, warning against extravagance, and reminded that "Wealth does not decrease by giving in charity" (Sahih Muslim, Hadith 2588). Social service was regarded as a spiritual act, with the assurance that "Whoever fulfills the needs of his brother, Allah will fulfill his needs" (Sahih Bukhari, Hadith 2442), and fairness in dealings was paramount, as he advised, "Pay the worker his wages before his sweat dries" (Sunan Ibn Majah, Hadith 2443). These timeless Hadiths highlight the Prophet's call for sincerity in faith, social equity, and the fulfillment of collective responsibilities, demonstrating Islam's enduring vision for individual and societal well-being.

The Prophet( pbuh) said: Ostentation is a sort of polytheism(shirk) and the reason as explained by al-Ghazali, is that when he said:if somebody worships for Ostentation is a worship of one's self not of Almighty Allah.In the charter of humanity uttered by prophet pbuh above the Jabal ar Rahman, he reminded; constant redistribution and circulation of the private wealth to intended beneficiaries as prescribed by the Quran (9:60) to avoid accumulation in the hands of few(hoarding)which called by jurists as zakat or fiscal duty or ibadat maliyah (worship of Allah by means of property). The Prophet pbuh used to spend the sadaqat on orphans, weaklings and poors: till they earn their livelihoods by themselves.

The essence of religion, particularly Islam, as envisioned by Mulla Sadra, Syed Nursi, Meister Eckhart, Schuon, alongside other key mystics who have emphasized the harmonization of devotion with universal welfare, from earliest to more recent times, include Rabia al-Adawiyya, Fudayl ibn Iyad, Al-Ghazali, Ibn Arabi, Rumi, Bahauddin Naqshband, Shah Waliullah al-Dihlawi, and Ibn Ata Allah al-Iskandari. These figures have significantly contributed to the understanding that spiritual devotion is inherbasic necessities like food, education, or healthcare. The Prophet (peace be upon him) warned against such neglect, asserting, "He is not a believer whose stomach is filled while his neighbor goes hungry" (Musnad Ahmad). This profound hadith underscores that devotion to God is hollow if it is divorced from empathy and responsibility toward others.

A similar imbalance is evident in the construction of extravagant mosques, Consider the millions spent on extravagant house constructions, extravagant mosques, ostentatious life style, wasteful spending, disregard for responsible use of resources, non-obligatory pilgrimages versus the unmet needs of the poor, the uneducated, ailing patients, poor parents craving for their daughter marriage ,widows suffering ,people in debt and the homeless. millions spent on them could transform lives if redirected. Balance, justice and compassion are fundamentals in Islam. While the architectural beauty of mosques is celebrated, their functionality often remains limited. Historically, mosques were centers of learning, charity, and social reform, serving as community hubs that addressed diverse needs. The Prophet's mosque in Madinah, simple yet profoundly purposeful, stands as a testament to this ethos. In contrast, many modern mosques prioritize aesthetics over utility, with millions spent on elaborate structures that do little to alleviate the struggles of the poor or the marginalized. The responsible use of resources in Islam is a holistic concept that integrates spiritual, social, and environmental dimensions. Rooted in divine guidance, it promotes a balance between consumption and conservation, ensuring justice and compassion for all. By embracing these principles, Muslims can contribute to a sustainable and equitable world, embodying the Qur'anic vision of being "a just community" (Surah Al-Baqarah, 2:143) and fulfilling their role as stewards of the Earth. This extravagance not only contradicts the simplicity of the Prophet's example but also represents a misallocation of resources that could be better used to address urgent societal challenges.

Charity and economic justice, central pillars of Islam, are also frequently overlooked. The Qur'an repeatedly commands Muslims to redistribute wealth to ensure societal equity, stating, "And establish prayer and give zakah and bow with those who bow [in worship and obedience]" (2:43). Zakat, Sadaqah, and Khairaat are mechanisms designed to uplift the disadvantaged and reduce economic disparity. However, contemporary statistics reveal that these obligations are often neglected or poorly implemented. A study by the Islamic Development Bank found that less than one-third of eligible Muslims pay Zakat effectively. This failure exacerbates poverty, leaving millions to suffer needlessly while resources remain hoarded by the affluent. The Qur'an sternly warns against such behavior, stating, "And those who hoard gold and silver and do not spend it in the way of Allah-give them tidings of a painful punishment" (9:34).

Islamic history provides numerous examples of welfareoriented leadership and community organization that modern Muslims can emulate. Caliph Umar ibn Al-Khattab, known for his commitment to justice, implemented comprehensive welfare programs, including public treasuries, food distribution systems, and care for orphans. #### The Chief Minister

"This book isn't about that paragraph. Read what comes before and after. The story is about a great man - the tallest leader of Kashmir, one of India's tallest. He's among the world's tallest leaders. Dr. Saheb is a legend. That won't change," he said.

When pressed about allegations that Abdullah tacitly supported the Article 370 revocation, Dulat was unequivocal. I really don't know what transpired. I did ask Dr. Sahab and Omar as well, and they said, "We were told nothing at all. While writing this book I again asked Dr. Sahab, and he said, ask Omar, but.. The response I got from both father and son was that they had been told nothing. So, it's got nothing to do with what people are saying today. It's a lot of rubbish-that's all I can say."

As per KNO, Dulat added further that no one in Kashmir supported the 370 repeal. "There was not a single Kashmiri anywhere who supported the abrogation. And there were a lot of Indians who spoke against it-I did. I wrote against it, spoke against it, and so did many others. I remember our former Union Home Minister, Chidambaram, speaking with a lot of passion in Parliament, referring to it as a "monumental blunder." So, there's no question of any Kashmiri supporting it. Now, of course, as time has passed and the Supreme Court says everything is okay, Kashmiris probably feel that 370 is not coming back—though they're still willing to fight for it."

He recounted a poignant February 2020 meeting: "What transpired between Dr. Farooq and me was that he couldn't fathom why, after being with India all his life—his family, his father, everybody—they had to lock him up. That was the crux of it. So he said, "If they had to do this, why couldn't they take us into confidence?" That's the crux of the whole thing."

Dulat blamed media sensationalism, claiming that The Hindustan Times story wrecked everything. "As I said, I don't know who started this deliberatelysomebody did, obviously-because that first story in Hindustan Times wrecked everything. It rattled everyone, and I think it probably shook Dr. Sahab too. I don't know what frame of mind he's in, but obviously, it disturbed him. I can't say who is responsible. It's very difficult to say, and I don't want to name names here because I think this is a happy occasion and ought to end happily. But yes, somebody was responsible-I don't know who."

The ex-spy revealed how Kashmir became his life's work. "In 1988, I thought it was a holiday posting. By 1989, bombs were exploding. That winter, everyone fled - we lost four officers in weeks. Jagmohan had me removed, calling me 'Farooq's man.' But Kashmir

He named three figures, who targeted him: "Jagmohan, Mufti Sayeed, and Arun Nehru – they wanted me out."

Reflecting on the insurgency's origins, Dulat, per KNO, said: "We wasted a chance in 1989-90. The JKLF boys didn't understand 'azadi.' Pakistan's ISI exploited them - General Durrani told me even they were surprised by the militancy's spread."

On the Pandit exodus, Dulat said that then governor Jagmohan should not be blamed for the exodus of pandits however he was happy about it. "I was there when it started. A prominent Kashmiri Pandit (quoted in my book) came to me desperately, saying, "We have to go." There was so much fear—especially after Judge Ganju was killed on Hari Singh High Street. Nobody came for hours to retrieve his body—he bled to death. A lot of blame is put on Jagmohan—but I don't think he was responsible for the exodus. He was happy with it because if Pandits stayed, more would've been killed, and he'd have gotten the blame."

Recounting the 1999 Kandahar hijacking, Dulat revealed during the book launch that Farooq Abdullah [then Chief Minister] theatrically threatened to resign when Delhi demanded prisoner releases. "We went to Governor Saxena at 10 PM – he served Black Label and said to Dr Farooq, 'You're a big man, don't resign.' Faroog relented," claimed Dulat.

In a stunning historical assessment, Dulat, as per KNO, declared that history will judge Farooq Abdullah greater than his father. "He is a man with very strong and good political instincts, but he's also a very brave man to have endured all that he has. As a politician, I think he's one of the best. I've written in the book that he's the Sultan of Politics. When history is written, Dr. Farooq will emerge even greater than Sheikh Abullah. Now, I'm not saying spending 12 or 13 years in jail is easy, but the Sheikh had Mahatma Gandhi on his side. He had Nehru on his side. You know the story—when the Sheikh was finally released, he came to Delhi and stayed as the Prime Minister's guest. Would that happen today?"

Sonia Gandhi, Rahul Eyed Rs 2000 Cr Properties Without Investing A Penny: BJP

NEW DELHI: The BJP on Friday dared Congress leaders facing corruption charges to seek a quick and time-bound disposal of cases, as it slammed the party for citing politics as the reason for the ED's action against Sonia Gandhi and Rahul Gandhi in the National Herald case.

The ruling BJP kept the heat on the opposition party following the ED's chargesheet against the Gandhis and accused chief ministers from the Congress-ruled states of ploughing public money as advertisement into the weekly newspaper which few read.

Former Union minister Anurag Thakur alleged that the Congress used the newspaper as its ATM, claiming that Gandhis sought to acquire properties worth Rs 2,000 crores of the National Herald without investing a penny from their pocket.

Both Gandhis together owned 76 per cent of the Young Indian company which was, he said, given Rs 50 lakh loan by the Congress.

The company then took over the Associated Journals Limited, which owns the newspaper affiliated to the Congress, in lieu of Rs 90 crore it owed to the opposition party, he said.

Thakur asked if a political party can give a loan. To a question about the allegation that the ED action was politically motivated, the BJP leader dared Congress leaders facing corruption charges to move courts to seek guick and time-bound trial in the cases against them.

"If they have guts, they should do it," he said, adding that in the "Congress model of corruption" the thieves make a lot of noises.

The National Herald case, he said, has stunned the Congress ecosystem into silence.

Thakur noted Gandhis have moved courts for quashing action against them for many times since a lower court took cognizance of the matter before the Modi Government came to power.

The courts gave them no relief except that they are on bail, he said, adding that the judiciary did not intervene in the Enforcement Directorate's probe.

Turning to his home state Himachal Pradesh where the Congress is in power, Thakur accused the party of not fulfilling any of its 10 main promises but spending crores of rupees in advertisement in the National Herald.

"Does any Congress leader or member read it in Himachal," he asked, demanding that people should be given details of money spent by different Congress Governments in advertisements in the newspaper, which is available digitally.

The Congress has been organising protests in different parts of the country against the ED action.

Rohit Looking To Be In His Zone Again, A Big Score Is Coming Very Soon: Boucher

er-batterMarkBoucherbelieves out-of-form Mumbai Indians veteran batter Rohit Sharma is showing signs of returning to rhythm in the IPL and a big knock is just around the corner.

Rohit has failed to reach the 50-run mark in six matches this season with the 26 he scored against Sunrisers Hyderabad on Thursday being his highest score.

"Rohit Sharma took it upon himself to go after the bowlers. We saw some good oldfashioned Rohit Sharma sixes - big ones too. I liked his attitude," Boucher, a former Mumbai Indians head coach, said.

"He put the bowlers under pressure, created scoring opportunities. He was just past the 30-mark -- a big score is coming very soon. He's looking in that zone again," he told the IPL broadcaster.

Boucher also reflected on the performance of MI skipper Hardik Pandya, whose 21 off just nine balls with three fours and a six took Mumbai to the threshold of victory.

"Hardik Pandya is one of the best allrounders in the world. When he's firing, the team usually wins. I love his new role with the ball - he's not just bowling in the power play, but in the tough middle overs, the 'ugly overs'.

"And he's picking up wickets there too. That's giving him confidence, and it's translating into his batting, where he's going in and finishing games."

On the all-round performance of Will Jacks, he said, "Will Jacks has been under pressure and hasn't performed like he'd have wanted at the start of the competition. But he is amazjust a part-time spinner."

"He bowled really well and picked up some crucial wickets. That would've fed into his

"Hardik Pandya is a character, and he is ing-he's a genuine all-rounder and more than leading from the front -- whether it's batting, bowling, fielding, or even off the field. He's always smiling. The one thing about him-he never gives up.

in the last game against Delhi Capitals. Most teams would've given up. But Mumbai Indians clawed back - and that's Hardik Pandya for you. That was the game that may well have turned their season around.

batting confidence too - finally feeling like he's contributed. There's no reason he can't carry this momentum and do some fantastic things like he has for other franchises and Former India batter Ajay Jadeja also shared his perspective on Pandya.

"Last year wasn't the best for him, but this year, even without great results early on, he's stayed true to his style."

Jadeja feels MI's turnaround came in the Super Over win against Delhi Capitals on April 16.

"The turnaround, in my opinion, came

"Tonight was a bonus. It was a comfortable win, but the Delhi game showed what MI and Hardik are made of. When Hardik Pandya walks in, even when the team needs 10, 12, 15 runs an over, you still feel they've got a better chance with him at the crease."

"He bowled really well and picked up some crucial wickets. That would've fed into his batting confidence too - finally feeling like he's contributed. There's no reason he can't carry this momentum and do some fantastic things like he has for other franchises and for England."

We have to adapt to tough surfaces: Vettori after loss to MI

MUMBAI: Urging his batters to suitably tweak their approach on "difficult" surfaces, Sunrisers Hyderabad coach Daniel Vettori said they cannot expect belters at every venue and need to up their game after being outgunned by a wily Mumbai Indians in their IPL clash here.

Mumbai Indians produced a perfect show on a tricky pitch here at the Wankhede Stadium which had assistance for spin and pace for the seamers, especially with the slow and short balls to win the contest by four wickets on Thursday.

SRH could only post 162 for five after struggling to find their flow with the bat. MI pacers and right-arm off-spinner Will Jacks (2/14) set up the win.

"I feel like no one really has control over their surface, so there's a little bit of luck involved in terms of coming up against wickets that don't suit us," Vettori told the media after SRH failed to win another away game in this IPL.

SRH features big-hitters like Abhishek Sharma, Travis Head Heinrich Klaasen, Ishan Kishan and Nitish Reddy. Barring Abhishek (40 off 28 balls), and Klaasen (37 off 28 balls). the other batters could not make a noteworthy contribution.

"There has to be more to it from our side that we have to adapt. We know that conditions like this exist in Chennai, sometimes (in) Ahmedabad. We're not expecting to go over around the country and come up on belters, so the ball's in our court to realise that," the former New Zealand spinner said.

Vettori said it was MI bowlers who made the job extremely tough for SRH batters in the first half of the game, especially in the middle overs.

"It was just incredibly tough through those middle stages," he said.

"It was a difficult surface. Mumbai read the conditions exceptionally well...they really relied on that slow ball, but it was mainly effective because of their execution and there's some supreme exponents of it in (Jasprit) Bumrah and Trent Boult and even Hardik Pandva.'
