PAHALGAM TERROR ATTACK FALLOUT

India Commits To Severe Action Against Terrorists And Their Backers: PM Modi

KC News Network

NEW DELHI: Terrorism is the "biggest threat" to humanity and India is committed to take "firm and decisive" action against the terrorists and their backers, Prime Minister Narendra Modi said on Saturday, against the backdrop of escalating tensions between New Delhi and Islamabad over the horrific Pahalgam terror attack.

He made these remarks after holding wide-ranging talks with visiting Angolan President Joao Manuel Goncalves Lourenco. Modi announced a defence credit line of USD 200 million for the African nation.

His assertion on strongly dealing with terrorism came even as India announced fresh punitive measures against Pakistan including complete ban on imports from Pakistan, suspension of all postal services from that country and banning entry of Pakistani-flagged ships at Indian ports.

"We are unanimous that terrorism is the biggest threat to humanity. I expressed my gratitude to President Lourenco and Angola for their condolences to those killed in the terrorist attack in Pahalgam," Modi said in his media statement.

"We are committed to take firm and decisive action against the terrorists and those who support them. We thank Angola for their support in our fight against cross-border terrorism," he said terror attack figured prominently in Modi-Lourenco talks

At a media briefing, External Affairs Ministry spokesperson Randhir Jaiswal said the global community has come out in large numbers and strongly condemned the terror attack on Indian soil

"They have also conveyed a very strong sense of solidarity and support for India. And, they stand with the people of India in this hour," he said.

Citing "cross-border linkages" to the April 22 attack, India has promised severe punishment to those involved in the strike.

President Murmu Pushes For Legal Empowerment Of Panchayats To Settle Disputes

KC News Network

NEW DELHI: President Droupadi Murmu on Saturday made a strong pitch to extend the dispute resolution mechanism to rural areas so that the Panchayats are legally empowered to mediate and resolve the conflicts in

She said social harmony in villages is an essential prerequisite of making the nation strong.

Murmu also said that while people who mediate in family or land disputes in village are socially empowered, they lack legal empowerment which leads to such cases failing to get settle at the village level itself.

Addressing the first conference on mediation here, she said during resolution of disputes, affected parties know of legal powers, therefore, they do not agree with the decisions.

The president said there was a need to create a mechanism where disputes at village level are settled there only and the atmosphere is not vitiated and people live in harmony.

At times the disputes spiral out. Several small issues can be resolved at the grassroots level itself, she asserted.

Chief Justice of India Sanjiv Khanna, CJI-designate BR Gavai and Law Minister Arjun Ram Meghwal were also present at the event.

Murmu said it could perhaps be due to an oversight or lack of time that a judicial system from the village to the Supreme Court has not been established.

Prince Harry to pursue security case with minister after losing UK court battle

LONDON: Prince Harry has said he will write to UK Home Secretary Yvette Cooper about his concerns over the security detail that would be available to his wife Meghan Markle and children Archie and Lilibet when in the country.

The 40-year-old younger son of King Charles III on Friday lost his Court of Appeal battle in London over the issue, which he blamed as an "establishment stitch up" in an explosive interview with the BBC. The Duke of Sussex, who is no longer a working royal and based in the US, revealed that he has not spoken to his father amid the legal wrangles and fears for the security of his wife and kids.

"This process has only ever been about ensuring my safety and that of my immediate family when we are in the United Kingdom, so that we may safely visit my home country with the same level of security that other governments deem necessary for our protection," Harry said in a statement following the court ruling against him.

"The court's ruling confirms that the Executive Committee for the Protection of Royalty and Public Figures, known as RAVEC and comprised of senior officials from the Royal Household, Home Office and Metropolitan Police, has failed to follow its own mandated processes for me, which are applied to all other high-risk and high-profile individuals.

"Given my profound concerns over this issue, I will be writing to the Home Secretary to ask her to urgently examine the matter and review the RAVEC process," he said.

Buckingham Palace has not responded in detail but issued a statement to indicate that the matter of the Duke's security was a closed subject.

"All of these issues have been examined repeatedly and meticulously by the courts, with the same conclusion reached on each occasion," a palace statement said.Describing the legal battle as a "last resort", Harry - who remains fifth in line to the British throne – expressed his anguish at not being in contact with his father and appealed through his BBC interview for a "reconciliation".

He said: "I can't see a world in which I would bring my wife and children back to the UK at this point.

"There have been so many disagreements between myself and some of my family... I would love reconciliation with my family. There's no point continuing to fight any more, life is precious. I don't know how much longer my father has, he won't speak to me because of this security stuff. It would be nice to reconcile."

Harry has been strongly criticised for fuelling speculation about the health of the 76-vear-old monarch while he is undergoing cancer treatment. "Prince Harry is saying 'I don't know how long my father has' - that's going to cause real concern and more speculation in the media and the wider public about what his diagnosis is, which is incredibly unhelpful going forward," Ailsa Anderson, a former press secretary to the late Queen and Harry's grandmother, told 'Sky News'.

"What you don't want to do is have your private life played out in the media. So, if you truly want reconciliation, you'll do it in private, not in a BBC News interview," she said.

After Harry decided to step down from full-time royal duties and moved to California in 2020, RAVEC decided to downgrade his high-level police protection for when he was back in the country.

Since then, as the Duke of Sussex he has argued that his private protection team in the US no longer had access to the UK intelligence information needed to keep his wife and children safe.

At the Royal Courts of Justice on Friday, Judge Sir Geoffrey Vos said that while Prince Harry's safety concerns were both "powerful and moving", his "sense of grievance" did not "translate into a legal argument".

Woman dies when bomb she is carrying

THESSALONIKI (Greece): A woman was killed early Saturday in the northern Greek city of Thessaloniki when a bomb she was carrying exploded in her hands, police said. The 38-year-old woman apparently was carrying the bomb to place outside a nearby bank around 5 am, police said.

Several storefronts and vehicles were damaged by the explosion.

Police said the woman, whom they did not publicly identify, had a criminal record related to drugs and prostitution and had been involved in at least one robbery and thefts in the past.

The Greek police's division for organised crime was investigating the incident, while authorities were also investigating whether the woman might have had ties to extreme leftist groups.

Greece has seen occasional bombings, as well as targeted killings, attributed to various organised crime groups.

The country also has a long history of politically motivated violence dating back to the 1970s, with domestic extremist groups carrying out smallscale bombings that usually cause some damage but rarely lead to injuries.

While the groups most active in the 1980s and 1990s, whose preferred targets tended to be politicians,

Withdraw Discriminatory Order on Marriage Assistance Based on Education: Hakeem Yaseen Urges J&K Govt

Srinagar, May 3: President of Jammu and Kashmir Peoples Democratic Front (J&K PDF) and former minister Hakeem Muhammad Yaseen on Saturday urged the Jammu and Kashmir Government to immediately revoke what he described as a discriminatory and objectionable order that makes only 8th class pass-out females eligible for marriage assistance under the relevant welfare scheme.

In a strongly worded statement issued today, Hakeem Yaseen said that marriage is a basic human right, equally applicable to both literate and illiterate individuals. He questioned the rationale behind linking a welfare scheme like marriage assistance to educational qualification and termed the government directive as regressive and Hakeem said the move reflects a betrayal of earlier commitments made by the government to support the economically weaker sections of society, regardless of their educational status. He warned that the order, if not withdrawn, could create unnecessary divisions within society, both vertically and horizontally, further marginalizing already vulnerable groups.

Calling the order a violation of basic human rights, the former minister appealed to the government to withdraw it immediately, without dragging the issue into prolonged debate or procedural delays. He emphasized that assistance for marriage should be provided on the basis of need and not on academic credentials.

The PDF president expressed hope that the administration would take immediate cognizance of public sentiment and rollback the controversial condition in the larger interest of social justice and equality.

Double EMI Deduction Creates Financial Woes for Government Employees in J&K

JKReTTF Appeals for Urgent Intervention from CM Omar Abdullah

Srinagar: A sudden and unexplained double deduction of EMIs has left numerous government  $employees in Jammu \, and \, Kashmir \, grappling \, with \,$ financial distress.

The Jammu & Kashmir Rehbar-e-Taleem Teach-issue, urging Chief Minister Omar Abdullah to step in and provide immediate relief.

According to Chairman IKReTTF. Khalid Rafeeq Bhat, Employees were shocked when, after the usual EMI deduction for April 2025 on May 1, a second unauthorized deduction occurred just two days later. "This unexpected double charge has disrupted household budgets, leaving employees struggling to meet basic living expenses".

Bhat said first EMI for April 2025 was duly deducted on May 1 as scheduled. However, just two days later, on May 3, a second EMI for the same loan was again withdrawn from the accounts of several government employees without any prior notice or explanation.

"This has caused immense financial hardship to employees who depend entirely on their monthly salary to cover essential needs such as household expenses, education, and especially the medical care of aging parents," said Bhat in a statement issued on Saturday. "The arbitrary double deduction has left many employees struggling to manage even their basic needs."

Calling the situation alarming, Bhat appealed to Chief Minister Omar Abdullah to take urgent note of the issue and direct  $\,$ the concerned authorities to rectify the

"The government employees of Jammu and Kashmir UT deserve financial transparency and security. Such errors erode public trust in the banking system and place undue pressure on those who serve the public tirelessly," Bhat said.

Public Outcry Grows Over Poor Functioning of Aloosa Tehsil Office

BANDIPORA: The Aloosa Tehsil office in Bandipora district has come under scrutiny for administrative negligence and sluggish functioning, leaving local residents exasper-point to delayed services, lack of staff accountability, and indifferent behavior by officials.

One glaring example of inefficiency emerged recently when a Bandipora court ordered a report concerning a road in Aloosa to be submitted by December 23, 2024. Despite the urgency of the matter, the tehsil office failed to meet the deadline, citing the unavailability of the Tehsildar. The concerned party reportedly made several visits to the office but was continuously met with excuses and inaction. "It was only after nearly four months of relentless follow-ups that the office finally submitted the report to the court," said a local source familiar with the case while speaking to Kashmir News Bureau.

Another resident shared his frustration over the prolonged delay in getting an agreement attested. "I waited at the office for > nearly two hours, but the official did not offer a proper hearing or explanation," he said, calling the experience discouraging and disrespectful.

Such incidents are not isolated. Many residents have echoed similar complaints, describing the tehsil office as unresponsive and slow to act. The delays have caused significant inconvenience, especially for those who must return multiple times to complete basic paperwork.

Adding to the woes is the absence of a full-time Tehsildar in Aloosa.

Locals claim that the charge of Aloosa Tehsil lies with the Bandipora Tehsildar, who is reportedly available only twice a week. This limited access has further deepened the administrative crisis in the area.

Kashmir News Bureau made repeated attempts to contact the Tehsildar for comments, but he remained unavailable.

As public frustration mounts, residents are appealing to higher authorities to intervene and address the inefficiencies in the Aloosa Tehsil office. They demand prompt action to ensure reliable, transparent, and timely public service delivery. (KNB)

WAVES Bazaar

The resounding success of the inaugural WAVES Bazaar, held in Mumbai from May 1 to 3, 2025, marks a defining moment in India's march toward becoming a global powerhouse in the creative economy. As the world takes notice of the ₹800 crore in confirmed business transactions—projected to soon surpass ₹1000 crore—it becomes evident that this initiative is more than a marketplace; it is a statement of India's intent to lead in the global storytelling revolution.

This maiden edition of the Bazaar served as a catalyst for strategic alliances across film, music, radio, animation, and visual effects sectors. What makes WAVES Bazaar truly revolutionary is not just the volume of business, but the quality and diversity of collaborations it has inspired. From a first-ever Indo-UK co-production like Devi Chowdhurani, to the strategic content alliance between Prime Video and Korea's CJENM, to a proposed Indian Film Festival in New Zealand—these are not just deals, they are cultural bridges. Even early-stage talks between Indian and Russian entertainment giants signal a new era of cross-cultural storytelling and soft power diplomacy.

The significance of such initiatives cannot be overstated. In a world increasingly divided along political lines, cultural connections offer a unique platform for dialogue, empathy, and unity. Through music, film, and shared stories, nations can understand each other better—and in that understanding, build lasting partnerships.

Moreover, WAVES Bazaar has amplified the creative aspirations of young Indian talents, providing them a rare chance to pitch intellectual properties to a global audience. This is a powerful step toward democratising creativity and decentralising opportunity in the entertainment space.

The Ministry of Information & Broadcasting, NFDC, FFO, and partners like Invest India must be lauded for envisioning this collaborative venture. However, the challenge now lies in sustaining the momentum. Follow-up mechanisms, annual continuity, and stronger government-private synergy will be essential to ensure that the WAVES Bazaar doesn't remain a one-time splash but becomes a permanent tide lifting the fortunes of India's creative industries.

India's future on the world stage will not be shaped by trade alone, but by the stories it tells, the values it projects, and the voices it uplifts. WAVES Bazaar hasshownwhatispossible when vision meets execution. The world is watching—and listening.

Global Warming:

A Global Crisis

Smruti S Pattanaik

lobal warming is the long-term rise in Earth's average surface temperature due to human activities, primarily the emission of greenhouse gases (GHGs). Over the past century, the planet has warmed significantly, with devastating effects on the climate, ecosystems, and human societies. The urgency to address global warming has never been greater, as its impacts are becoming increasingly visible and severe.

Causes of Global Warming

Greenhouse Gas Emissions: The primary driver of global warming is the accumulation of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere, especially carbon dioxide (CO), methane (CH), and nitrous oxide (NO). These gases trap heat, causing the Earth's temperature to rise. The burning of fossil fuels (coal, oil, and natural gas) for energy, transportation, and industry is the largest source of CO emissions.

Deforestation: Forests act as carbon sinks, absorbing CO from the atmosphere. However, deforestation for agriculture, logging, and urban expansion reduces the planet's ability to sequester carbon. When trees are cut down and burned or left to rot, the stored carbon is released into the atmosphere.

Industrial Activities: Industrial processes contribute significantly to GHG emissions through the burning of fossil fuels and the release of pollutants. The production of cement, steel, and chemicals emits large amounts of CO and other harmful gases.

Agricultural Practices: Modern agriculture contributes to global warming through the release of methane from livestock digestion and rice paddies, and nitrous oxide from fertilizers. Intensive farming also leads to land degradation and loss of biodiversity.

Effects of Global Warming

Rising Temperatures: Global average temperatures have risen by more than 1°C since the pre-industrial era. This seemingly small change has far-reaching consequences, including more frequent and intense heatwaves.

Melting Ice and Rising Sea Levels: The polarice caps and glaciers are melting at an accelerated rate, contributing to rising sea levels. Coastal cities and to the spread of diseases, increases the frequency of heat-related illnesses, and worsens air quality. Vulnerable populations, especially in developing countries, are most at risk.

Solutions to Global Warming

Transition to Renewable Energy: Replacing

Policy and International Cooperation: Global warming requires coordinated action. Agreements like the Paris Climate Accord aim to limit warming to below 2°C. Governments must implement policies such as carbon pricing, subsidies for clean energy, and regulations on emissions.

Individual Actions: Individuals can contribute by reducing energy use, recycling, using public transport, island nations are at risk of flooding, displacement, and loss of freshwater sources.

Extreme Weather Events: Global warming increases the frequency and intensity of extreme weather events such as hurricanes, droughts, floods, and wildfires. These events cause loss of life, destroy infrastructure, and disrupt economies.

Threats to Biodiversity: Rising temperatures and habitat loss are pushing many plant and animal species toward extinction. Ecosystems such as coral reefs are particularly vulnerable, with warming seas leading to coral bleaching and death.

 $Human\,Health\,Risks; Global\,warming\,contributes$ fossil fuels with renewable sources such as solar, wind, hydro, and geothermal energy is essential to reduce GHG emissions.

Energy Efficiency: Improving the energy efficiency of buildings, vehicles, and appliances can significantly lower energy consumption and emissions.

Reforestation and Afforestation: Planting trees and restoring degraded forests can enhance carbon sequestration, protect biodiversity, and improve water cycles.

Sustainable Agriculture: Adopting climate-smart agricultural practices can reduce emissions, enhance food security, and support rural livelihoods.

and supporting sustainable products. Education and awareness are key to driving collective action.

Conclusion: Global warming is not a distant threat—it is a present-day crisis affecting every corner of the globe. While the challenges are immense, the solutions are within reach. A united global effort, driven by innovation, policy, and individual responsibility, is essential to mitigate global warming and secure a livable future for generations to come.

A Teacher Beyond Compare: The Legacy of Mushtaq Ahmad Mir

JAVAID JAWAI

Retirement is a natural phase in every professional's life. Over the years, many employees have retired from their duties, and many more will do so in the future. However, there are some individuals whose work, values, and service leave behind a deep and lasting impact. These individuals become role models, inspiring others with their sincerity, integrity, and dedication. One such person is Master Mushtaq Ahmad Mir, who retired from the Department of Education on April 30, 2025.

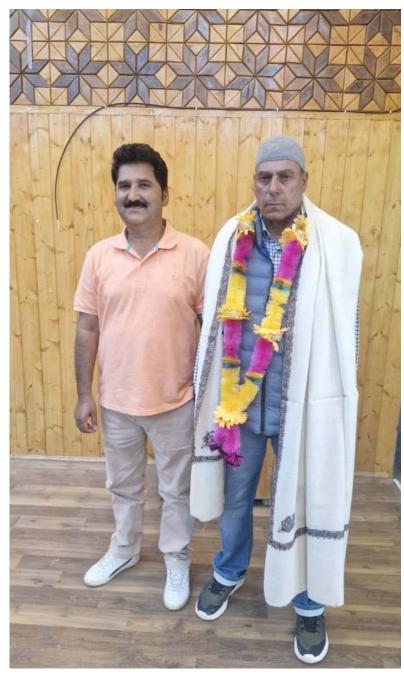

Mr. Mushtaq Ahmad Mir served at Nadeem Memorial Boys Higher Secondary School for nearly five years before retiring. His retirement, along with dozens of other employees across various departments, marks the end of a chapter not just in his life but in the lives of many students and colleagues who had the privilege of knowing and working with him. He was the youngest son of the late Muhammad Afzal Mir, a well-known and respected teacher and administrator in the region. It is clear that a passion for education and public service ran in the family.

public service ran in the family.

Mr. Mushtaq was known for his calm nature, honesty, and a deep sense of self-awareness. These qualities made him stand out from others. His students and fellow teachers always respected him for his sincerity and ethical approach. He was a postgraduate in Commerce but also had a deep love for literature and poetry, which made his classes lively and enjoyable. He often used poetry and literary references to explain life lessons, which his students found both inspiring and educational.

In any department, it is common for employees to seek promotions, and the Department of Education is no different. Many aspire to become headmasters, lecturers, or educational officers. While ambition is natural, it becomes a problem when promotions are given to people who may not be qualified for those higher roles. Unfortunately, in Jammu and Kashmir, this has become a growing issue. Promoting unqualified individuals has damaged many educational institutions and deprived countless students of quality education. Many capable and hardworking students have suffered due to the incompetence of such promoted officials.

In this context, Mr. Mushtaq set a rare and powerful example. A few years ago, he was offered a promotion to the post of lecturer. This would have meant better pay and higher status. However, he refused the promotion. He explained that although he had completed his postgraduate studies in Commerce, it had been nearly 30 years since then, and he no longer felt connected to the subject in a way that would do justice to students at the lecturer level. He felt that accepting the promotion without the ability to serve effectively would be unfair to the students. Such honesty and self-reflection are rare and admirable, and his decision showed his strong principles.

At his farewell ceremony, held at Nadeem Memorial Boys Higher Secondary School, many speakers praised Mr. Mushtaq for his dedication and moral strength. The school's Principal, Mr. Abdul Rashid Lone, shared a touching story that revealed Mr. Mushtaq's true character. He recalled an incident where Mr. Mushtaq had made a minor mistake while registering a student for the board examination. When he discovered the error, he took full responsibility and spent both time and money to correct it. He ensured that the student's academic future was not affected, just to satisfy his own conscience. This story speaks volumes about the kind of teacher and human being he was.

Mr. Mushtaq's departure is not just a loss for his school, but also for the entire education system. We are losing teachers who are not only qualified and skilled but who also understand the importance of honesty, responsibility, and commitment to students. The absence of such teachers will surely have a negative impact on the quality of education and the moral values passed on to the next generation.

passed on to the next generation.

It is important that we recognize and appreciate the contributions of teachers like Mr. Mushtaq Ahmad Mir. Their work often goes unnoticed, but it is the foundation of our society. As we bid farewell to this noble educator, we also express our hope that the values he lived by will continue to inspire others in the profession. We need more teachers who are not just instructors, but true mentors—people who teach not only from books, but also by example.

In the end, we salute Mr. Mushtaq Ahmad Mir for his remarkable service. May his retired life be filled with peace, health, and happiness.
And may the seeds he has sown in the hearts and minds of students continue to grow and bear fruit for years to come.

Destiny Disrupted: A History Of The World Through Islamic Eyes

"Incredibly illuminating...lucid...For a comprehensive-but-approachable way to look at world history through the lens of Islam, there's no better book." —DAVE EGGERS

A HISTORY OF THE WORLD

here's also a critique regarding Ansary's somewhat idealized portrayal of the early periods of Islamic civilization. While the golden age of Islamic science, art, and philosophy is rightly celebrated, some critics suggest that Ansary occasionally glosses over the internal conflicts, contradictions, and struggles that were present in Islamic societies, especially during periods of decline or stagnation. For example, the complex relationships between religious scholars, political leaders, and military rulers during times of fragmentation or conquest are not always fully addressed, which could offer a more balanced view of Islamic history.

Finally, some readers have pointed out that while the book is intended to be a bridge between Western and Islamic worldviews, it may still be somewhat inaccessible to readers without a background in Islamic history. Though Ansary writes in a clear and engaging style, the sheer volume of information covered might overwhelm readers unfamiliar with the basic concepts and terms of Islamic history, leaving them with more questions than answers.

Despite these critiques, Destiny Disrupted remains an important and thought-provoking work, offering a rare and valuable perspective on world history from an Islamic viewpoint. It is praised for its storytelling approach and for challenging the prevailing Western narratives, even as it has been critiqued for its broad strokes and occasional oversimplifications.

Counterarguments

While Destiny Disrupted has faced some criticisms, there are several strong counterarguments that defend the book's approach and its contributions to understanding Islamic history.

One common critique is the book's broad sweep of history, which some feel sacrifices depth in certain areas. However, this wide-ranging narrative is also one of the book's strengths. By offering a comprehensive overview of Islamic history, Ansary allows readers to see the big picture and understand the broader context of how Islamic civilization has evolved over time. His goal is not to delve into exhaustive detail on every subject, but to provide a narrative that is accessible and understandable to a general audience. Ansary's ability to distill complex events into a coherent story is a significant accomplishment, especially when dealing with a topic as vast and diverse as Islamic history. While  $deeper\,explorations\,of\,specific\,regions\,or\,themes\,could$ be valuable, the book's intention is more about showing how Islamic civilization has developed as a whole and how it interacted with the world at large.

As for the perceived oversimplification of certain historical events or periods, this is not an uncommon challenge in writing a work that aims to synthesize vast swaths of history. Critics may argue that the book simplifies complex relationships between Islamic societies and the West, but Ansary's intention is to offer a broad understanding rather than an exhaustive, specialized examination. Given the book's intended audience—those seeking a general understanding of Islamic history—Ansary's approach works effectively for introducing key events and concepts without getting bogged down in overly technical or obscure details. His narrative is meant to spark interest and encourage further exploration rather than serve as the definitive academic work on any particular topic.

Regarding the idealized portrayal of early Islamic civilization, it's important to recognize that Ansary's focus on the "Golden Age" is part of his larger effort to highlight the contributions of Islamic civilization to the world. The Islamic Golden Age is historically significant, and while it is true that there were internal conflicts and challenges, it is equally important to acknowledge the immense intellectual and cultural achievements that occurred during this period. Ansary is not presenting a one-sided, romanticized view of this era but rather emphasizing its positive contributions to science, philosophy, and culture, which are often overshadowed by the focus on later periods of decline or conflict.

On the issue of political Islam and its portrayal in the modern era, Ansary's treatment is intended to offer a broad understanding of the challenges faced by the Muslim world in the 20th and 21st centuries. It's important to remember that the book does not attempt to cover every ideological movement within Islam in minute detail but rather provides an overview of the major political and ideological trends, such as nationalism, secularism, and political Islam. The goal is to introduce readers to these ideas and their historical roots, not to exhaustively analyze every faction or movement. In doing so, Ansary opens the door for further exploration of these complex issues, encouraging readers to engage with the deeper political and theological debates within Islam.

Finally, while the book may be challenging for those unfamiliar with Islamic history, this is not necessarily a weakness. Ansary's ability to make complex ideas accessible is a key strength, and the book is written in a style that encourages readers to learn without overwhelming them with jargon or technicalities. The aim is to make Islamic history relatable and interesting to a wider audience, and in that respect, the book succeeds. For those looking for a more in-depth understanding, Destiny Disrupted provides an excellent starting point, prompting readers to seek out further information and resources.

In summary, while the criticisms of Destiny Disrupted are valid in certain contexts, they overlook the book's overarching goal of providing a clear, engaging, and accessible narrative that introduces readers to Islamic history from an Islamic perspective. Ansary's work fills a gap in historical discourse by challenging Western-centric views and offering a broader, more connection, especially for those unfamiliar with Islamic history, whereas Armstrong's academic approach may be more suited for readers with a background in religious studies.

Another interesting comparison can be made with Reza Aslan's No God But God: The Origins, Evolution, and Future of Islam. Aslan's work, like Ansary's, provides a comprehensive history of Islam, but with a stronger focus on the theological and ideological evolution of the religion. Aslan delves deeply into the philosophical aspects of Islam and its modern challenges, offering a more reflective and personal take on the religion's future. Ansary, on the other hand, offers a broader historical narrative that emphasizes the cultural and political development of Islamic societies and their interactions with the West. Both authors share a personal connection to Islam and bring their own perspectives to their writing, but Ansary is more concerned with offering views, fostering empathy and challenging prevailing stereotypes. By presenting Islamic history from within, Destiny Disrupted invites readers to rethink conventional historical narratives and promotes greater dialogue between cultures, making it a valuable contribution to the global conversation on history, identity, and mutual understanding.

I suggest that Destiny Disrupted be approached as an introductory work for those seeking to understand Islamic history from a unique perspective. While it inclusive narrative that invites curiosity and deeper understanding. The simplifications and omissions in the book are not weaknesses but are part of Ansary's deliberate attempt to reach a wide audience and spark a conversation about the role of Islamic civilization in world history.

Comparison with previous Books

When comparing Destiny Disrupted: A History of the World Through Islamic Eyes by Tamim Ansary with Karen Armstrong's Islam: A Short History, we can see notable differences in their approach and scope. Armstrong's book is concise and academic, offering a factual and chronological account of Islamic history that covers key events and figures. Her style is more neutral and scholarly, making it an excellent resource for readers seeking a straightforward overview of Islam. In contrast, Ansary's work is more narrative-driven and personal, as he intertwines his own experiences with historical events. While Armstrong provides a focused, factual understanding of Islamic history, Ansary's strength lies in offering a more accessible, engaging story that highlights the cultural and intellectual contributions of the Islamic world, aiming to create empathy between the Islamic world and the West. Ansary's conversational tone and storytelling style provide a deeper emotional a historical story, while Aslan's work places a greater emphasis on Islamic thought and its philosophical trajectory. While Ansary's work is engaging for those seeking a historical overview, Aslan's book may appeal more to readers interested in the ideological shifts within the Muslim world and the religion's role in the modern era.

Conclusion

Destiny Disrupted: A History of the World Through Islamic Eyes by Tamim Ansary stands out as an engaging and insightful exploration of Islamic history from a perspective often overlooked in mainstream Western narratives. Through his narrative-driven approach, Ansary provides readers with a broader, more inclusive view of Islamic civilization, highlighting its contributions and challenges throughout the centuries. His ability to intertwine personal anecdotes with historical events makes the book accessible and relatable, encouraging a deeper understanding of the cultural, political, and intellectual forces that shaped the Muslim world.

While the book has faced critiques for its broad scope and occasional oversimplification of complex historical events, these choices reflect Ansary's intent to offer a general overview that introduces readers to key moments in Islamic history. His work serves as an important bridge between Western and Islamic worldmay not offer exhaustive details or deep dives into every aspect of Islamic civilization, it provides a compelling and accessible narrative that can spark curiosity and encourage further exploration. Readers who are interested in understanding the historical context of modern-day Muslim societies and the relationship between the Islamic world and the West will find Ansary's work particularly valuable. However, for those seeking a more in-depth analysis of specific periods or intellectual movements, it may be beneficial to complement Destiny Disrupted with more specialized works on Islamic history or philosophy. Nonetheless, Ansary's engaging style and clear storytelling make it an excellent starting point for anyone looking to challenge their understanding of world history and broaden their view of Islamic civilization.

Officials added that this year's preparations included three rounds of training and orientation for pilgrims, covering safety protocols, rituals, and travel instructions.

"A vaccination drive has also been completed, with pilgrims receiving mandatory vaccines, including those for influenza and polio. Pilgrims have been informed about baggage limits," officials added.

Pertinently, there were concerns following Saudi Arabia's recent suspension of Umrah, tourist, and visit visas ahead of the Hajj season. However, officials later clarified that this was a routine measure aimed at preventing the misuse of non-Hajj visas for pilgrimage and ensuring better management of facilities for officially registered Hajj pilgrims.

Describing the gruesome nature of the killings, Sharma added, "To shoot a husband in front of his wife, to kill a father before his child—there can be no act more barbaric."

He asserted that the BJP-led central government would not rest until those responsible are eliminated. "Even if I say this from a remote corner of Bandipora, I do so with complete responsibility—the culprits will be killed and buried," Sharma said, reaffirming the Centre's zero-tolerance stance on terrorism.

Referring to Union Home Minister Amit Shah's remarks, Sharma said the message is clear: those behind the Pahalgam attack will be dealt with harshly. "Anyone thinking of repeating such acts will meet the same end. This is our firm commitment," he declared.

Responding to recent comments made by National Conference leader Dr Farooq Abdullah, Sharma was dismissive. "He has spoken in the language of China, Pakistan, and Pakistan-occupied Jammu and Kashmir in the past. He even claimed that Prime Minister Modi would need ten lifetimes to abrogate Article 370."

While acknowledging Abdullah's recent statement that Pakistan should be taught a lesson, Sharma expressed skepticism. "It's a welcome change, but I urge him to stay consistent. If he has finally taken a stand against Pakistan, then let him not change his tune by evening," Sharma said.(KINS)

Asthma affects up to 10% of Kashmir population: Doctors

Chronic respiratory disease third leading cause of death globally

Jahangeer Ganaie

SRINAGAR: Asthma, a chronic and potentially life-threatening respiratory condition, is impacting between 5 to 10 percent of the population in Kashmir, mirroring global trends, doctors have warned. They are urging the public to take early symptoms seriously and adopt preventive measures against the disease, which, along with Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD), has emerged as the third leading cause of death worldwide.

Speaking to the news agency—Kashmir News Observer (KNO), Dr Tanvir Ahmad, a chest disease specialist, said chronic lung diseases like asthma and COPD are responsible for an estimated 4.5 lakh deaths globally each year. "Many of these deaths are preventable with timely intervention," he said.

Dr Tanvir said that while manageable, asthma continues to pose a significant health burden, particularly in Kashmir, where approximately 8% of the adult population and a substantial number of children are affected. He added that asthma appears to affect women more than men, attributing this trend to environmental, genetic, and occupational factors.

In Kashmir, the cold climate, increasing pollution levels, frequent use of biomass for heating, and exposure to allergens have been identified as key contributors to the rising incidence of asthma, Dr Tanvir further explained.

Dr Khursheed Ahmad, another doctor, said early diagnosis and proper management can improve the quality of life for individuals with asthma. "Unfortunately, myths and social stigma still surround asthma, deterring people from seeking timely help," he said. "Many fear using inhalers, thinking it shows weakness or dependency, which is absolutely untrue."

He cautioned that if left untreated, asthma can lead to severe respiratory distress, permanent lung damage, or even death. "Delayed diagnosis or irregular medication use increases the risk of frequent hospitalisations and long-term complications."

Comparing the situation globally, Dr Khursheed added, "India records ten times more deaths due to COPD than Western countries. This disparity is largely due to a lack of awareness, poor compliance with treatment, and limited access to specialised care."

Dr Javid Ahmad echoed this concern, saying non-adherence to medications is one of the major reasons behind increasing fatalities. "People often stop using prescribed inhalers once they feel better, without understanding that asthma is a chronic condition requiring continuous management," he said. "Inhalers are safe, effective, and have minimal side effects when used properly."

Doctors identified several contributing factors to the rising burden of asthma in Kashmir, including cold and dry climate, which triggers bronchial inflammation; use of wood and coal for heating, leading to indoor air pollution; outdoor air pollution from vehicles and industrial activity; allergens like pollen, mold, and dust mites; smoking, both active and passive, significantly worsening the condition and poor ventilation in homes, especially during winter.

They strongly advocate for increased public awareness and proactive health practices. They recommend timely diagnosis through spirometry and other tests; regular use of prescribed inhalers, especially corticosteroids; avoidance of known triggers, including smoke, dust, and cold air; proper home ventilation and use of air purifiers if necessary; vaccination against flu and pneumonia and education campaigns to remove stigma and myths.

Experts have urged the government and healthcare institutions to enhance asthma surveillance, promote screening, and incorporate asthma education in public health policy. "People living with asthma can lead normal, productive lives if they understand the disease and adhere to treatment," doctors said, adding, "Awareness is the first step towards control."—(KNO)

MUMBAI: Global firms are keen to work with the newly announced Indian Institute of Creative Technology (IICT) to harness the creative energies in the country's youth, Union Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw said here on Saturday.

The Information and Broadcasting minister made these remarks after seven leading firms — JioStar, Google, Adobe, Meta, Apple, NVIDIA and Microsoft — exchanged Letters of Intent with the IICT on the sidelines of the World Audio Visual and Entertainment Summit (WAVES) here.

The Letters of Intent were exchanged in the presence of Vaishnaw, Union Minister of State for Information and Broadcasting L Murugan, and I&B Secretary Sanjay Jaju.

The IICT is being set up by the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting as a National Centre of Excellence on the lines of the prestigious IIT and IIM in strategic collaboration with trade body FICCI and industry body CII.

"India has the potential to take a global leadership role in the world of media and entertainment. This institute is the first step in that direction and we have to build on it," Vaishnaw said.

The minister said there was a huge willingness among global firms to work with the IICT.

Women's Tri-Series: Confident India take on resurgent Sri Lanka

ndia will look to extend their dominant run while a resurgent Sri Lanka will strive to stay in contention for the summit clash when the two teams clash in the women's tri-nation ODI series here Sunday.

Harmanpreet Kaur's side has been clinical so far, notching up wins against both Sri Lanka and South Africa to sit atop the points table with two victories from as many matches. India had outplayed the hosts in the tournament-opener last week, but Sri Lanka's convincing five-wicket win over South Africa on Friday has injected new life into their campaign.

India have now won eight consecutive ODIs, with all three departments clicking in unison. Whilespinners Sneh Rana and Shree Charani starred with the ball to dismantle Sri Lanka in the first meeting, openers Pratika Rawal and ensured a smooth chase of the 148-run target.

Against South Africa, India's top order once again provided the platform before the middle order, led by Kaur and Jemimah Rodrigues, added 82 runs in the final 10 overs to post a competitive total. Despite opener Tazmin Brits threatening to take the game away, Rana's timely three-wicket over turned the tide decisively in India's favour. The fielding unit also impressed with sharp work on the ground, supporting the bowlers efficiently.

However, pacers Kashvee Gautam and Arundhati Reddy were expensive against South Africa and will aim for better control and adaptability on the slower surface.

For Sri Lanka, the 128-run fourth-wicket stand between Harshitha Samarawickrama and Kavisha Dilhari — the highest for the team in ODIs at that position — formed the backbone of their win over South Africa.

added some depth to the top order.
India, with momentum on their side, will aim to seal a place in the final, while Sri Lanka

The bowling department was equally effective with Malki Madara and debutant Dewmi Vihanga sharing seven wickets between them.

However, the poor form of skipper Chamari Athapaththu remains a concern, putting additional pressure on the batting unit. The inclusion of 19-year-old Vishmi Gunaratne has will look to stay in contention with another strong performance.

Squads:

India: Pratika Rawal, Smriti Mandhana, Harleen Deol, Harmanpreet Kaur(c), Jemimah Rodrigues, Richa Ghosh(w), Deepti Sharma, Kashvee Gautam, Arundhati Reddy, Sneh Rana, visha Dilhari, Inoshi Priyadharshani, Vishmi Gunaratne, Hansima Karunaratne, Achini Kulasuriya, Sugandika Kumari, Malki Madara, Harshitha Samarawickrama, Manudi Nanayakkara, Hasini Perera, Piumi Wathsala, Inoka Ranaweera, Anushka Sanjeewani, Rashmika Sewwandi, Nilakshika Silva, Dewmi Vihanga.

We know how to keep scoreboard ticking on testing pitches: Gill

ujarat Titans skipper Shubman Gill said the understanding of playing on tricky surfaces has helped the top-three including himself, Sai Sudharsan and Jos Buttler to do well in the IPL this season.

The trio has scored the bulk of the runs for GT who are on course to make the play-offs. It was no different on Friday as the top-order took the home side to 224 for six which the bowlers could comfortably defend against Sunrisers Hyderabad. GT also played just 22 dot balls in 20 overs.

"Didn't plan that (22 dot balls), idea was to continue to play like we have. Black soil (pitches), we've seen it's not easy to hit sixes. But the way our top order plays, we know how to keep the scoreboard ticking.

"We've never had the conversation for one of the top-three to always be there at the end. We're just eager to do our best," said Gill at the post match presentation. He top scored with 76 off 38 balls.

On his heated exchange with the umpire during the run chase, Gill added: "There are so many emotions, you give 110% on the field, sometimes you're bound to show emotions."

Having scored 64 off 37 balls, Buttler played down his effort and instead showered praise on Sudharsan, who made  $48\,\mathrm{off}\,23\,\mathrm{balls}.$

"I've said it few times, day one watching him in the nets, I was blown away by how good he is. More importantly great head on his shoulders.

"The effort he puts in, the work, the understanding of his game, the humility to keep coming everyday and keep working. He's shown fantastic consistency and getting the rewards he deserves," said the former England captain.

SRH are virtually out of the play-offrace after their seventh loss in 10 games. SRH skipper Pat Cummins said they allowed GT to score 20-30 extra runs.

"Chasing 200 looked a bit more realistic. They are class batters. They don't do anything outlandish. If you bowl bad balls, they just put it away. We probably dished out too many bad balls," Cummins said referring to GT's top-order.

There's a 'serious question mark' over Mohammed Shami, says Aakash Chopra arlier this month, Mohammed Shami almost broke an IPL record. That of the most expensive four-over spell in a game. He conceded 75 against Punjab Kings (PBKS), just one fewer than Jofra Archer's 76 for Rajasthan Royals (RR) against about the fact that [at the] Border-Gavaskar Trophy, [Jasprit] Bumrah was alone, there was no Shami, and if there was Shami how things would have been different. But will there be Shami [in England] is the question.

And what kind of Shami?
"This tournament is such that it doesn't

Sunrisers Hyderabad (SRH). You do go for runs in T20 cricket, but Shami hasn't looked himself in IPL 2025, and as Aakash Chopra put it, "he's not looking good" right now, keeping in mind India's Test tour of England not long after the IPL.

Shami didn't play the last IPL after he was sidelined with an ankle injury and underwent surgery in his right foot in March 2024. In IPL 2023, he won the Purple Capfor his 28 wickets for Gujarat Titans (GT). On Friday night, against GT, he went 3-0-48-0. That took his season's numbers to six wickets from nine matches at an average of 56.17 and an economy rate of 11.23. Combined with much else, Shami's poor run with the ball has been one of the reasons for SRH's dismal season.

"You've had a big surgery like that, I think psychologically for a start [it gets you down]," Danny Morrison said on ESPNcricinfo's Time Out after SRH's latest defeat, which left them on the brink of elimination. "And then you've got to come back and pace yourself, I just wonder: he is no 29-year-old anymore, is he? So there are all of those things that are stacked against you."

If Morrison chose to be kind, Chopra didn't.

"That's a big question there, no, because it's not like he came back from an injury last week or last month. He started playing domestic cricket last year and this is May already, "Chopra said.

"He's played an ICC event [Champions Trophy] in between. He's played a lot of games. If he's still off the boil, and that has something to do with the injury - and we're all assuming that it is - then there is a serious question mark with regards to what happens next.

"Of course, [SRH] is one story. The other is the tour of England. All of us were harping matter who you are. If you're not delivering the goods, you will be taken to the cleaners. And right now, what I see with Shami is, pace down is one bit, second is not enough balls getting bowled in the same area. Mohammed Shami was always that. That is his only strength [and], it is phenomenal."

For the record, Shami returned to competitive cricket in the Ranji Trophy late last year for Bengal, and after being a part of the Syed Mushtaq Ali(T20) and the (50-over) Vijay Hazare Trophy squads for Bengal, was back in international cricket with the T20I series at home against England in January-February. The biggest high in all this was picking up 5 for 53 against Bangladesh in the Champions Trophy, where he was India's highest wickettaker with nine wickets, as his team went on to win the tournament.

In that same Champions Trophy, Shami opened the bowling against Pakistan and bowled five wides in the first over. His lines were off on Friday night too. He drifted into Shubman Gill's pads - and was flicked for six - and gave width to B Sai Sudharsan, and even bowled a 20-run over, the third of the GT innings.

"Going back to that game against Pakistan, where he bowled five wides in the first overokay that happened also 45 days ago or, maybe more, two months ago [on February 23] - so if he's still not able to get the ball right... because he's not someone who will get flicked for a six; you can drive him for a four, cut him maybe - he doesn't give you that much width by the way - but very seldom will he bowl those that you're flicking for a six and you're happy facing the [next] ball. So yeah, he's not looking good," Chopra said.
